Raging Floods Drown Five In California

OJAI, Calif. (AP) — Along the debris-choked banks of Sespe Creek, the clearing sky disclosed a young boy's body . . . then the bodies of two more . . . then the lifeless forms of a sheriff's deputy and a forest ranger.

It was feared five more would be found dead today.

These were the lost part of six young hikers, their adult leader and three men who tried tragically to rescue them from the rain-flooded area.

A survivor of the group, Scott Eckersley, 28, told authorities that he was washed ashore after a bulldozer stalled as they had attempted to cross the swift stream late Monday.

Elsewhere, as skies dried over California, heavy property and crop damage was counted. Southern California's storm damage was estimated at $3 million.

There were 47 storm-related deaths.

The storm turbulence was blamed for light plane crash in which three Texans died on a mountainside near Banning.

At least 29 traffic deaths in southern California were caused by the storm, authorities said.

In the foothills of Angeles National Forest, northeast of Los Angeles, 15 homes were destroyed by floods and rockslides in the Azusa-Glendora area.

More than 90 other homes were damaged by overnight floodwaters from mountains denuded by a 19,000-acre brush fire last year which sent muck and boulders crashing through a housing tract. Several were filled with mud six feet deep. Fifteen homes were evacuated.

A mud flow wrecked the Azusa-Pacific College gymnasium, causing $100,000 damage, and hundreds of cars were partly buried at times.

The damage in Glendora-Azusa was expected to exceed $1 million. In San Luis Obispo County, officials said flood waters caused $2 million damage.

In Tulare County, a sheriff's deputy found Ronald E. Balster,

Coors Becomes Fifth Largest U.S. Beer Firm

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — The Adolph Coors Co. sold a record 5,337,390 barrels of beer in 1968 and became the fifth largest brewer in the United States, despite the fact that all production comes from a single brewery at Golden.

Coors, ranked seventh the previous year, moved past Carling and F. & M. Schaefer Co. The top four are Anheuser-Busch, Inc. (Budweiser), Schlitz, Pabst and Falstaff.

Coors sales were up 15.6 per cent from 1967. A barrel of beer, incidentally, contains 31 gallons.

Soviet Cosmonaut Injured at Kremlin Gate by Wild Gunman

By MICHAEL JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP) — A mentally unbalanced young man fired several shots at a motorcade led by the Soviet Union's four cosmonaut heroes Wednesday, seriously injuring a chauffeur and inflicting slight wounds on cosmonaut Georgy Beregovoy, the Soviet foreign ministry said today.

The shooting took place before more than a thousand onlookers at the entrance to the Kremlin, but it was hushed up for nearly 24 hours. Official confirmation of the incident came only after newsmen asked government spokesmen for details.

A foreign ministry official said the gunman was "schizophrenic."

One Soviet source said Beregovoy was cut by broken glass, not hit by a bullet.

The foreign ministry spokesman, told of this and other unconfirmed details, said: "The facts as you have them took place."

The attack reportedly occurred as the motorcade approached the Kremlin's Borovitsky Gate, shortly after 2 p.m. Riding in an open car at the head of the procession were the four cosmonauts being honored for their successful flights in Soyuz 4 and Soyuz 5—Vladimir Shatalov, Boris Volynov, Yevgeny Khrunov and Alexei Yeliseyev.

The gunman, described as a young man, was reportedly seized by bystanders and turned over the the police.

21 Killed by Miss. Tornadoes

HAZLEHURST, Miss. (AP) — Tornadoes ripped across central Mississippi early today, killing at least 21 persons and injuring more than 100.

The heaviest damage was reported at Hazlehurst, about 30 miles south of Jackson, where a twister cut a half-mile wide swath and left 10 persons dead and 15 to 20 homes demolished.

The Mississippi Highway Patrol said seven persons were killed by twisters in adjoining Simpson County between Mendenhall and Harrisville.

Police said a twister killed four persons in one house near White Oak, east of the Harrisville-Mendenhall area.

Hospitals at Hazlehurst and Mendenhall were reported filled and victims of the tornadoes were being sent to hospitals in Jackson.

The violent storm touched down a mile south of Hazlehurst at 6:25 a.m. CST and cut a destructive swath one mile

Skyway 'Vigilantes' Plan to Battle City

A "non-militant vigilante committee" that wants to block what it feels is an attempt at forcible annexation of the Skyway area by the city of Colorado Springs will have its long-awaited confrontation with elected officials Jan. 30.

The confrontation will be between an ad hoc committee from the dissenting Skyway area ,headed up by attorney Alfred Coxe, Colorado Springs officials and county commissioners. Ed Hayes, of Cimarron Development Co. also will be on hand.

Commissioner Chairman Keith McBurney told the Gazette Telegraph Wednesday that he is completing arrangements to have the confrontation at 10 a.m., Jan. 30, in the county commissioners conference room at the County Office Building.

Though the conference room, on the third floor of the building, is much smaller than the county office building auditorium on the same floor, McBurney said he was coordinating the meeting to a concept of something more intimate where views could be expressed as contrasted to a publicized meeting last year where about 150 persons showed up to protest.

Basically, the Skyway group is objecting to what it feels is an attempt on the part of the city of Colorado Springs to forcibly annex them. And the group feels that the city is using

Bucher Told He May Be Facing Court-Martial

By RICHARD MEYER

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — A Navy court told Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher Wednesday that he was suspected of violating naval regulations in surrendering the intelligence ship Pueblo to the North Koreans. He was informed by the five admirals constituting a court of inquiry that anything he said from now on might be used against him in court-martial proceedings.

But Bucher, obviously shaken by the statement, said he would continue to give "full details" of the Pueblo's capture and of the 11 months he and his 81 surviving crewmen spent in captivity.

Bucher resumes his testimony today—the first anniversary of the seizure of the ship by the North Koreans.

Wednesday Bucher, 41, described how he gave up the Pueblo with her guns still covered. The court recessed briefly after he told of "receiving" aboard a party of North Korean riflemen about 20 miles off Wonsan Harbor and how they prodded his crew to sitting positions on the deck.

After their return, his face tensed as he heard counsel for the Navy, Capt. William Newsome declare: "Commander Bucher it is my duty to tell you that facts revealed in this court of inquiry render you to be suspect of a violation of USNR Article 0730.

"And you are further advised that you don't have to make any further statement on it and any

Dr. Fred Sondermann, following a statement of position by each member of the committee in attendance, moved that the committee recommend that the council place on the ballot the proposal that the city be divided into four districts with a member of the council elected from each district and five councilmen be elected at large.

Mel Kensinger then proposed an amendment to the motion which would divide the city into four districts but the members

Coronado to Be Name of Fourth High School

Coronado High School will be the name of the new westside high school number four, it was announced Wednesday at the meeting of the Board of Education of Colorado Springs School District 11.

Not 'Any Price' for Peace, Lodge to Tell

By GEORGE SIBERA

PARIS (UPI)—Chief U.S. negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge intends to make it clear to the Communists when the expanded Vietnam war talks begin Saturday that the United States wants peace but not at any price, informed sources said today.

The sources said this is in line with instructions from President Nixon to his chief delegate at the talks among the four major combatants in the war: The United States and South Vietnam and North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky left Saigon today for Paris for his duties as supervisor of the South Vietnamese delegation at the talks.

'I don't think we will have a quick result," he said, "but we will try. We go to Paris to discuss how to end this war of aggression."

Agreement on strategy at Saturday's opening session of the expanded talks was expected to be clinched by the Allies at today's meeting of Lodge and his Saigon colleague, Pham Dang Lam.

U.S. officials said relations between the U.S. and South Vietnamese delegations reflected a solid unity of views.

Diplomatic sources said Lodge has complete instructions from President Nixon and they reflect the basic aims of the outgoing Johnson administration —achieving an honorable peace and preventing a Communist takeover in Saigon.

Both Lodge and Lam will lay the blame for the war on Communist subversion backed by Hanoi manpower and finances, diplomats said.

Communist sources said North Vietnamese chief delegate Xuan Thuy and Tran Buu Kiem of the Viet Cong will demand that the conflict be settled on their terms.

The American and the Saigon government will call on the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong Saturday to agree to a propaganda-free, businesslike

196 Americans Killed In One Week of War

By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today that 196 Americans were killed in action in Vietnam last week, the highest weekly toll since mid-December.

Headquarters also reported the loss of two more U.S. Air Force fighter-bombers over South Vietnam, raising to five the number of American warplanes shot down over the South in the past three days. Five of the six crewmen aboard the five planes were rescued. The other was killed.

Spokesmen said the five losses were the heaviest three-day toll over South Vietnam in more than seven months. The latest losses raised to 335 the number of U.S. warplanes shot down in combat over South Vietnam during the war.

While American casualties moved up last week, so did those of the South Vietnamese military and the enemy.

Government headquarters announced that 292 South Vietnamese troops were killed in action during the seven-day period ending at midnight Saturday, their highest mark since last than three months.

Enemy casualties also hit their ighest mark since last November. Allied spokesmen reported 2,420 enemy troops were killed in fighting last week.

South Vietnamese military headquarters said enemy activity increased 70 to 80 per cent in the northernmost 1stCorps area and in the central highlands, the 2nd Corps area.

A communique said enemy activity remained at about the same level as the previous week in the 3rd and 4th Corps zones that stretch west from Saigon to the Cambodian border and southward to include all of the Mekong Delta.

The U.S. Command said that while there have been no major actions since the first of the year, there have been hundreds of small fights that caused mounting casualties.

The lull in major ground fighting persisted today. U.S. and South Vietnamese headquarters reported sharp, short fights in scatted parts of the country and said their forces killed 97 enemy soldiers in the past 24 hours.

Meanwhile, thousands of allied troops hunting down enemy supply bases uncovered at least half a dozen more big stockpiles of munitions and food. They seized more than 10 tons of munitions and 15½ tons of food.

The sweeping troops seized 163,000 rounds of machine-gun and small arms ammunition,

It Took Four Hours To Free Trapped Dog

CHANUTE, Kan. (AP) — No one knows how or why Bullet, a 10-pound dog, got his head wedged in a 4-inch steel pipe, but it took some two-footed friends five hours to get him out.

D.A. Ludlum found the canine trapped in the quarter-inch-thick pipe.

Two hours of hacksaw work removed part of the "collar" but left Bullet with his nose still sticking through the large end of the pipe.

For another hour, soap and grease were applied to the dog's head and ears in an effort to slip him free.

Finally, Bullet was taken to a machine shop where it required two more hours of careful cutting to free him.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Father Jerome asks for a psychoanalysis of religion in America. Discuss this case in Sunday School. For "Free Enterprise" and "Religion" are Siamese Twins, so the death of one will soon kill the other! We need more evangelistic preachers, like St. Paul, to prevent the erosion of the soul that threatens our youth.

CASE H-594: Father Jerome is a Roman Catholic priest.

"Dr. crane," he began, "I have quoted you often in my sermons, since you uphold morality.

"For I find that parishioners appreciate all the aid that you newspaper columnists offer in the way of instilling religious idealism into our youth.

"And that is doubly necessary in this time of religious decay.

"For example, our Catholic church lost 711 priests and brothers during the years 1966 and 1967.

"They just withdrew from their religious duties and disappeared into modern society.

"Furthermore, we are having increasing difficulty recruiting new men and women for our various church orders.

"How do you diagnose the present decline in religion?"

EROSION OF SOUL

Ever since 1933 there has been a steady erosion of the soul and a decay in the pristine virtues that we used to enshrine before our oncoming youth.

But in 1933, young people were urged by governmental agents to stall on the job and string out their tasks.

Hostility was deliberately cultivated between employers and workers.

"Everybody is entitled to happiness," was the motto, though this violated the express statement in our Declaration of Independence which said we are entitled only to the "Pursuit of Happiness," not to happiness itself.

Part of this concerted attack on our earlier moral virtues came from Communists in America, who scoff at religion.

A hedonistic philosophy has arisen of the "Eat, drink and be merry," variety.

Surveys thus show that there has been a serious decline in the belief in a Hereafter, which means atheism is increasing.

Uncle Sam has replaced God with millions of Americans as the source of their food and shelter.

Medicare has even made them think that Uncle Sam can prevent their death!

Welfare and United Funds have taken over the former functions of the "Home Missionary" societies of the various churches.

The desertion of the Catholic Church by 711 priests and brothers is not due alone to the fact they are denied the right to marry, though that has often been cited in explanation.

For Protestant churches have likewise shown a similar decline.

Bishop Raines, of the Methodist Church, said it requires 1,200 seminary graduates each year just to replace its retired or dying clergymen, yet only 1,000 graduate annually.

Bishop Raines estimated that his denomination actually needs 3,000 new clergymen annually to occupy the empty churches, build the proposed new churches and fill the demands for chaplains, Wesley Foundation Directors at colleges, yet he is 2,000 short each year!

Socialism and Communism are noted for their erosion of religion, so the more they contaminate America, the less religious we shall be.

In this regard, Billy Graham estimated the church attendance in Socialistic England at not 5 per cent and in Communistic Russia it is almost nil!

"Free enterprise" and "Religion" are thus Siamese Twins. Death of either one will soon kill the other!

Church Council to Hold Memphis Meet

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Delegates representing the 33 denominations which belong to the National Council of Churches will march Thursday to the Lorraine Motel where Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was slain on April 4.

The council began its general board meeting here Monday night.

General Secretary R. H. Espy said while King was not an official of the NCC, he was a frequent speaker at many of its events and was highly respected within NCC councils.

Espy said clergy delegates will not wear their religious garb during the mile-long march to the motel, but will carry signs showing the denominations which they represent.

Dr. Arthur S. Fleming, president of the NCC, and Miss Jean Fairfax of New York, legal counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, will deliver eulogies before a memorial wreath to King is placed at the motel.

Malnutrition Is Found In U. S. Poverty Groups

WASHINGTON (AP) — Early findings of a government survey show alarming incidences of malnutrition in America's poverty-stricken groups, the survey director said today.

Dr. Arnold E. Schaefer, director of the 10-state National Nutrition Survey, said in testimony prepared for the Senate Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs "it is unreasonable in an affluent society to discover such signs as those seen to date."

The survey is being conducted by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Field teams have reported their findings on 12,000 people in four states—Texas, Louisiana, Kentucky and New York, excluding New York City.

"It is important to bear in mind and perhaps shocking to realize that the problems in the poverty groups in the United States seem to be very similar to those we have encountered in the developing countries," Schaefer told the senators.

He reported the discovery of 18 cases of rickets—"virtually eradicated over 30 years ago"—and seven cases of severe malnutrition of a type rarely found even in backward countries. Rickets results from faulty nutrition and shows up primarily in the bones of young people.

Malnutrition in the United States has been the subject of controversy for more than a year. Various agencies have made conflicting claims, some contending there is extreme hunger, particularly in the rural South, others countering that it is not a serious problem.

Shaefer said the areas HEW is surveying were chosen to give broad geographic representation and to include both rural and urban people with diverse economic, ethnic and social patterns.

No report has been issued on results in Michigan, California, Washington, West Virginia, Massachusetts, South Carolina and New York City.

The most widespread nutritional problem, Shaefer said, is deficiency of one or more nutrients such as protein, vitamins and minerals or of calories, the measure of a food's energy-producing ability.

Early reports "clearly indicate an alarming prevalence of those characteristics that are associated with undernourished groups," he mentioned growth retardation, anemia, goiter and dental problem.

CAPITOL STUFF

By FRANK JACKMAN

WASHINGTON — On Monday, Liz Carpenter will close up shop in the east (or women's) wing of the White House and call it quits after more than eight hectic years as press secretary and general factotum for Lady Bird Johnson. In a town where stuffiness and self-importance are a way of life, wisecracking, irreverent Liz will be sorely missed.

A close personal friend of President and Mrs. Johnson since she first came to Washington fresh out of journalism school 26 years ago, she is devoted to the first family and is a "psalm-singing, foot-washing, total-immersion Democrat" besides.

But that doesn't prevent her from seeing the wacky side of life in the executive mansion. And of all the Johnson aides, she's probably the only one who dares talk back to the President.

Liz — nobody calls her Mrs. Carpenter —has already signed to write a book about her experiences. The other day she gave an overflow crowd at a National Press Club luncheon a sample of what they can expect when her memoirs appear. "I have wonderful memories of the White House," she said. "I remember moments of crisis, moments when all the pressures of decision were written on the President's face — like the time I asked for a raise.

"I remember the gay, happy moments, moments of warmth and friendship and deep emotion, like the day Eartha Kitt came to lunch," she said, and the room rocked with laughter. The fiery Miss Kitt stunned guests at Mrs. Johnson's "women doers" luncheon last January when she rose from her chair and loudly criticized to the first lady's face the administration's efforts to help impoverished slum youngsters.

Reminiscing about Mrs. Johnson's whistlestop tour through the South from Washington to New Orleans during the 1964 campaign, Liz said that 225 reporters signed on for the trip, "including two French newsmen, and I never laid eyes on them again. I assume they got off the train at New Orleans and got back okay."

She said the first lady got the idea for the trip from former President Truman, who told her: "There are a lot of people who don't know where the airport is, but everybody knows where the depot is." In North Carolina, Liz added, one town pleaded for Mrs. Johnson's train to stop there "because nobody important has been here since William Jennings Bryan.

Liz, who said "Behind every successful television correspondent stands a woman, and behind her, stands his wife," admitted being an old-fashioned, pencil-type reporter at heart. But she said that editors these days tend to take all the romance out of the business. "Like the editor of the Austin (Tex.) Herald-Statesman, where I got my start. He used to say that newspapering is the most oversexed and underpaid profession in the world, and he never did anything to disprove either point."

Her book should be a best-seller.

When it comes to sheer star power, nobody can hold a candle to the Kennedys — not even the next President of the United States. That was made clear this week when the inaugural committee announced the lineup for tonight's All-American Gala at the D.C. Armory. The only real superstar on the program — that is, someone you'd spot in a crowd—is TV's Johnny Carson. The others, like the cast of the broadway musical "George M" and Buddy (Beverly Hillbillies) Ebsen, are talented enough, but their names are not exactly household words.

Not so with the Kennedys, however. Actor Sidney Poitier, comedian Alan King, singers Perry Como and Trini Lopez, and actress Lauren Bacall are just a few of those scheduled to be on hand at the Washington Hilton Wednesday for the Robert F. Kennedy memorial dinner, designed to raise money to help pay off the debts of the senator's last campaign.

Besides lining up more talent than the inaugural committee, the dinner planners also came up with a unique ticket setup. For $100 you get a white ticket, which entitle you to sit at a table with 10 other people, some of whom may be famous, but for $500 you get a gold ticket, which entitles you to a pre-dinner cocktail party and a post-dinner party at the home of Sen. Edward Kennedy in nearby Virginia.

No-Stone-Unturned Department: In the official guidebook of the inaugural committee appears this warning: "Those attending the inaugural parade are asked to wear warm outdoor clothing."

There are some advantages to stepping down. Now that they're leaving office, both President Johnson and Vice President Humphrey appear to be growing sideburns.

And Sen. Richard B. Russell (D. Ga.), who gave up his longtime post as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee to take over the Appropriations Committee, actually arrived a little late for the start of an Armed Services hearing Tuesday. The Russell punctuality is a Capitol Hill legend.

The courtly Georgian asked the chairman's pardon, then expressed his gratitude, now that he's just a plain committee member, for the opportunity, "for the first time in years, to indulge in the luxury of being three minutes late to a committee hearing."

Reduced Price Plane Fares May Be Ended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board has been given a second strong nudge—this time from a senior member of its own staff—toward abolishing reduced-price airline fares for youngsters 12 to 21.

Cab Hearing Examiner Arthur S. Present issued an initial decision Tuesday recommending that the board declare youth fares "unjustly discriminatory" and cancel them. Unless the board or some other party moves to block the action, his decision will become the board's formal order in 30 days.

The decision followed the guidelines of a 1967 U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals opinion that emphasized the "rule of equality" in giving reduced farmes to youngsters while their elders pay full fare.

Twenty-four U.S. airlines offer youth fares in some form.

Mother May Run for Park Commission

BELLINGHAM, Mass. (AP)—A Bellingham mother says she will seek election to the town park commission if her 16-year-old son Todd is ruled off the ballot by state election officials.

Mrs. Marie Hennessy, 36, said Wednesday night that she took out papers for the post and will file the required 37 valid signatures required to put her name on the ballot by the Jan. 27 deadline for the March election.

Mrs. Hennessy, who also is candidate for tax collector, indicated that if elected to the park commission, she would have her son do the work.

"If Lurleen Wallace could do it for her husband, I can do it for my son," Mrs. Hennessy said.

State election officials have been asked for a ruling in the matter.

196 Americans Killed in One Week of War

1,500 mortar, rocket and recoilless rifle shells, and 15½ tons of food.

One detachment of U.S. air cavalrymen operating near the Cambodian border ran across a Viet Cong base camp 59 miles northeast of Saigon. It consisted of 15 bunkers, two kitchens, one classroom for military training and a repair shop for bicycles. Among the stores seized were 9½ tons of barley and dried fish and six tons of rice.

The latest finds raised to about 700 tons the total of enemy supplies allied troops have seized in the past 26 days. This includes more than one million rounds of machine gun and small arms ammunition.

Most of the munitions have been seized between Saigon and the Cambodian border, and some senior U.S. officers think this has been one of the chief reasons why the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese haven't launched a new offensive against the South Vietnamese capital this winter. Traveling light on foot through the jungle, the Viet Cong must prepare their approach with stockpiles spaced along the way before they can launch any sizable offensive.

The Viet Cong kept up their nightly shelling of bases and provincial capitals while avoiding large-scale ground fighting.

For the second night in a row, enemy gunners shelled Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city. Seven 100-pound rockets slammed into the big American air base and the harbor, but no casualties or damage was reported.

The Viet Cong also fired 50 mortar and recoilless rifle rounds into Chuong Thien, a provincial capital in the Mekong Delta. Ten Vietnamese were reported killed and 11 wounded.

Troops from the U.S. 11th Light Infantry Brigade maintained a cordon around a village 65 miles south of Da Nang where an enemy force has been holding out for four days.

Intense fire from bunkers and zig-zag trenches kept the Americans out of the heart of the village, but a captured enemy soldier said the other troops inside the village were out of food and hungry. The villagers fled some time ago, and U.S. fighter-bombers pounded the village constantly.

"I think we'll just play a waiting game and keep the cordon tight," said one U.S. spokesman.

He said at least 19 of the enemy and three Americans have been killed and 25 Americans have been wounded.

long and one half mile wide.

The U.S. Weather Bureau issued a tornado warning for a large portion of central Mississippi and said a tornado was spotted in the Mendenhall-D'Lo area about 40 miles east-northeast of here.

Airmen Parachute to Aid Injured Seamen

HONOLULU (AP) — Three Air Force pararescuemen from Hickam Air Force base parachuted into the Pacific about 700 miles to the southeast Wednesday to give medical aid to two badly burned seamen.

The seamen aboard the Yugoslav cargo vessel Miho Pracat reportedly suffered serious burns over most of their bodies in a coal-gas fire aboard the vessel earlier Wednesday. The ship reportedly escaped damage.

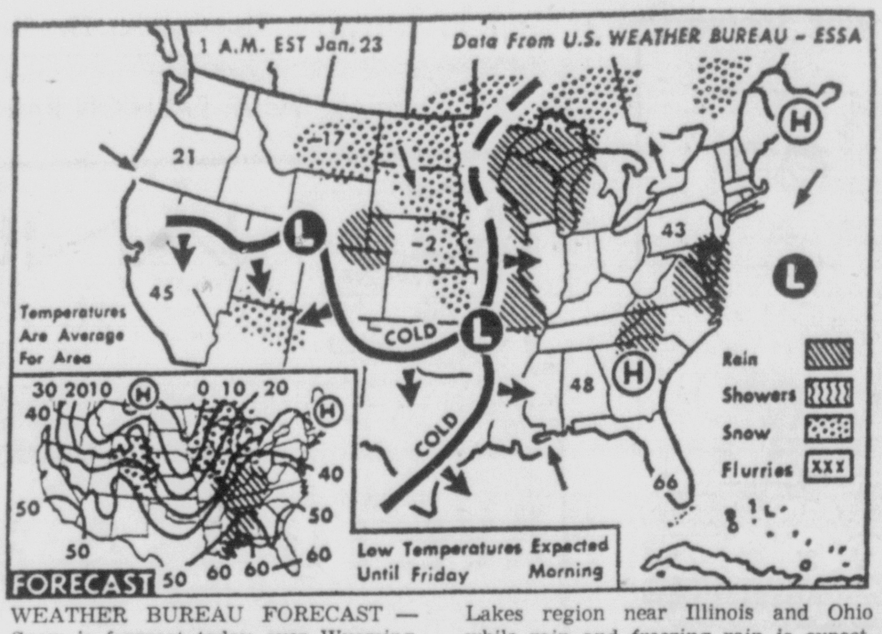
Th medically trained pararescuemen are M. Sgt. Paul Jenkins, 38, McGehee, Ark., S. Sgt. Robert Wheeler, 25, Bakerfield, Calif., and Sgt. Gregory Wilkel, 21, Montgomery, N.Y., all of the 76th Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron.

TREATY

TOKYO (AP)— Prime Minister Eisaku Sato said today he intends to continue the U.S.-Japan security treaty after 1970, when it comes up for review.

Sato called on the 2,000 delegates to a convention of his Liberal-Democratic party to help him rally support for the treaty and blunt the campaign by the opposition Socialist party to scrap it.

The Socialists contend that the U.S. military presence opens Japan to attack by anti-American powers. The Liberal-Democrats say it protects Japan because the country's own defense forces are not sufficient to do the job.



WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Snow is forecast today over Wyoming, Colorado, and the western tip of Nebraska. More snow is due around the Lakes region near Illinois and Ohio while rain and freezing rain is expected through most of the Mississippi Valley south of the Gulf coast.

Bucher Told He May Be Facing Court-Martial

further statement on it may be used as evidence against you in a subsequent trial."

A court of inquiry is not a military trial, like a court-martial, but only an investigative hearing. Nevertheless Bucher's status suddenly had changed from "a party to the court" to "suspect." Shortly after the crew's release just before Christmas at least two Navy admirals had called Bucher and his men heroes.

With a Brooklyn twang, Newsome quoted regulations:

"The commanding officer shall not permit his command to be searched by any person representing a foreign state nor permit any person representing a foreign state nor permit any other personnel under his command to be removed from that command by such a person, so long as he has the power to resist."

Bucher's civilian attorney, E. Miles Harvey, immediately demanded, "Commander, at the time the North Koreans first set foot on your ship did you any longer have the power to resist?"

"No, I did not," Bucher answered.

"Commander Bucher remains fervent in his desire to tell this court the full details," Harvey said.

"Commander Bucher, am I reciting your wishes correctly and that you were apprised of your rights to remain silent?"

"Yes," Bucher said. "You have."

The Navy, through Wednesday, had raised these points against Bucher:

1. That he failed to comprehend fully the possibility of an attack. For example:

Q. Vice Admiral Harold G. Bowen Jr.: "Did you ever consider an attack and what you would do?"

A. Bucher: "No sir, I never considered I would ever be attacked on this mission. It never occured to me nor did it cross my mind that I would ever be put in the position I found myself in that afternoon."

2. That his men weren't issued small arms.

Q. Bowen: "How about small arms for the men?"

A. Bucher: "Small arms were issued in drills in port and under way, but not on the day of capture."

3. That Bucher waited too long to order destruction of classified equipment and documents.

Bucher testified that he waited until after one boarding attempt by the North Koreans, a sea chase and their first salvo of cannon fire before giving the order.

Until then, Bucher said, he had only ordered preparations for destruction.

He said at least two mattress covers full of documents fell to the Communists.

4. That Bucher failed to realize his incinerator was too small to burn all the documents and he didn't sail into water deep enough for jettisoning them.

"It was a complete oversight on my part," Bucher said.

5. And finally, that he surrendered 81 of the most classified items on his ship when he turned over his men.

Q. Newsome: "Isn't it true that in deciding to surrender your vessel you also decided to surrender some of the most classified items on your ship, your personnel?"

A. Bucher: "Yes sir, that's right."

Explaining his decision, Bucher said he "decided that if the destruction of secrets was progressing satisfactorily... I would surrender the ship.

"Any further resistance would have meant complete slaughter of the crew."

Bucher, in the first four days, raised these points against his superiors:

1. That they sent him on a dangerous intelligence mission without giving him the explosives he asked for to destroy secret equipment in case he had to.

2. That they failed to meet his request for adequate mounted cannon and gave him two machine guns instead, along with the mount for a third gun he never received.

3. That he messaged repeated pleas for help when he was attacked—even directed messages to the White House—without getting any aid.

4. That at no time did he receive radioed advice or guidance from superiors about what action to take.

5. That he was given inadequate communications, both on the ship in the form of an Army telephone system insufficient in emergencies, and between his ship and Naval headquarters in Japan because of improper radio frequency synchronization.

"I had no confidence in it," he testified.

6. That he was given a steering system that failed more than 60 times in two weeks before it was finally repaired in Hawaii.

Bucher's testimony on Wednesday gave new details about the shelling of the Pueblo and indignities to her men when they were finally taken on shore in North Korea.

He said the crewman killed, Fireman Duane Hodges, of Creswell, Ore., was hit by a cannon shell that exploded in his upper thigh and abdomen.

"He could not possibly have survived even if there had been a team of expert surgeons aboard," Bucher said.

He added that Hodges died after emergency first aid as the Pueblo was being escorted to port.

Bucher and two other of his men were wounded.

Bucher said he was struck several times by his captors when he refused to disconnect the Pueblo's radio or uncover her guns.

From messages indicating help might be on the way, Bucher said he still had hope that U.S. planes might arrive in time to permit his men to try to resume control of the ship.

The skipper said he repeated to the North Koreans that the Pueblo's mission was to make hydrographic tests of the ocean and survey sound spots, but "I was told we were espionage agents and had none of the rights of military men, would be tried in Korean court and assured we would all be shot."

Cosmonaut Is Injured by Kremlin Gunman

the city to the Kremlin was shown on television, but the shooting was not broadcast.

The source said Soviet authorities kept it quiet in order not to detract from the heroes' reception given to the four cosmonauts.

The street where the attack reportedly occurred was packed with persons cheering the cosmonauts. As the first cars passed, the source said, the young man dashed from the crowd and fired the shots.

During the subsequent ceremony in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses, television cameras several times showed Beregovoy. He seemed relaxed, an there was no visible evidence of a cut on his neck.

During the festivities a messenger handed notes to Yuri Andropov, chairman of the KGB, the state security committee, and to Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist party. They were seated, along with other officials and dignitaries, on the stage with the cosmonauts.

Later, while medals were being pinned on the cosmonauts, Andropov handed a note to Brezhnev, who read it with a serious expression. The television commentator made no mention of this.

The source said the police have so far given no information on their investigation of the incident nor the motive for the shooting.

It was not clear whether the shots were fired indiscriminately or whether they were intended for any of the high officials riding in the motorcade.

Following the four cosmonauts in their open car was a long line of closed limousines carrying members of their families, other cosmonauts and leading government and Communist party officials.

The source said he did not know which car the injured chauffeur was driving. Beregovoy was riding in the second car behind the four cosmonauts being honored.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay donated a pint of his blood Wednesday and pronounced it a "miracle" he had any left after three years in City Hall.

Skyway Vigilantes Battle City

the county commissioners as tools to get the job done.

Behind their thinking and contentions is this sequence of events:

—A year ago the city of Colorado Springs began negotiations with the county regarding annexation of 28 acres of County Farm Land.

—The matter, more or less, was in limbo, until the county received — late last year —a letter from the city planner (Jim Ringe) asking the county to become a part of the annexation proceedings. The county did not object.

—The contention, all along, has been that Cimarron Development and Skyway Park cannot expand on their developments unless they get water and sewer from the city of Colorado Springs. The city, on the other hand, says the only way the developers can get the facilities is to become a part of the city.

—Becoming a part of the city — or being annexed — it was pointed out by the city involves being contiguous to a corporate boundary. The corporate boundary that Cimarron is contiguous to, is that 28-acre site at the County Poor Farm.

Following the development that the county was to become the third party in the annexation of that land, Coxe and his band of dissidents objected. The objections were enough to freeze the action with McBurney asking the City Planning Commission to table the whole matter.

That was where matters stood until McBurney and Coxe returned to town following the Christmas holidays.

Both confirmed Wednesday that the meeting now is set for the date mentioned.

"Provided that everything falls into place," McBurney added.

of the districts would still be elected at large. This, according to Kensinger and other members of the committee, would insure that the councilmen elected from districts would still have the best interests of the entire city at heart as he would still be elected by the qualified electors of the whole city.

The amendment was opposed by Dr. Sondermann and others who contended the proposal would be placing before the council, and if adopted, before the people, a proposal that would seem to change something without really changing it.

The only change, according to the opponents of the amendment, would be that councilmen elected from districts would have to live in and be nominated from their district.

Joe Pieper Jr. said, 'I want to live, do business and raise my family in one city, not in one-fourth of a city." He said that the amendment would insure that the city has four "districts" and not four "wards."

The amendment was adamantly opposed by Mrs. Kenneth R. Lovell who said the amendment would defeat everything that districting is supposed to accomplish. Mrs. Lovell had previously said she favored some sort of districting.

Also opposing the amendment, which did pass by a one-vote margin of 6-5, were Mrs. Fred E. Kyer, Mrs. George H. Reed, Dr. Sondermann, and Chairman William C. Henderson.

Favoring the proposal were Jerry A. Donley, vice chairman, Kenneth W. Geddes, Kensinger, Pieper, Milo Yalich and Larry R. Zook.

Following the vote Dr. Sondermann withdrew his motion and it was restated by Donley and passed by the same 6-5 margin.

The proposal, which will be submitted to the council, suggests dividing the city into four districts from which four councilmen will be elected while retaining five elected at large.

However, as dictated by Donley's motion, the four councilmen elected from districts will be elected by the qualified electors of the entire city.

Prior to any motions the members of the committee stated their positions on the question of districting.

"The time has come when most people want the town in districts," said Mrs. Reed. "Most people think it will be more representative government.

Mrs. Lovell stated she felt some form of districting was necessary and Mrs. Kyer said that districting would allow communication and repsonsibility.

Dr. Sondermann said he was "honestly torn" on the issue of districting but was "wholly persuaded the issue should go on the ballot." The doctor said he thought the committee should recommend to council that the issue be put on the ballot but said he was not convinced whether districting was a good thing or not.

Zook said he thought the main problem was a sociological problem and said he was "not sure we solve it by districting." His personal feeling was that there were many disadvantages and many advantages but the question should be placed up to the scrutiny of the public.

Geddes noted that one of the defeated amendments at the last election in July was for districting and said he did not think "changes should be proposed just to be proposing them." Geddes said he was in favor of recommending to the council that they not place the question of districting on the April ballot because there was no compelling reason to submit a charter revision question on districting to the people."

Pieper said he thought the only reason the question should be submitted would be to avoid criticism for not doing so." He said he personally was not in favor of districting at this time.

Donley said the basic theory of government by representatives of the people elected at large was the best theory but said there was a very vocal group "perhaps in the minority at this time" who feel this theory is not accomplishing the proper representation of the people.

Yalich told the group he did not think districting would change the complexion of the city government that much as the same people were going to be heard then as are heard now but said he favored putting the proposal on the ballot.

Chairman Henderson observed that the "time has come, perhaps, when the various areas of the city should have someone for liaison, if no other reason, with the city government." The former mayor said he would never approve total districting but would go along with partial districting and he felt the people should be allowed to make the decision.

Following the approval of the second motion by Donley, the committee agreed to meet at 4 p.m. Jan. 29 in the city manager's conference room to approve the form of the minutes regarding the districting decision.

Previously the committee had voted to recommend council place on the ballot a proposal that would reduce the term of a councilman from six to four years but had decided not to recommend the residency requirement of five years be lowered so that people who had lived in the city a shorter time could seek office.

After the committee makes its recommendations to the council, the city fathers will then have the task of approving the recommendations and placing the questions on the April ballot or not.

The council may concur in whole or in part with any recommendations of the charter committee or they may decide to go against all of the recommendations of the committee, although the latter proposal is not likely.

The final decision, however, of what to place on the ballot and what form the proposal shall take is solely in the hands of the council.

of Spanish cultural influence in Colorado. The school's name honors the Spanish explorer, Francisco Vasquez de Coronado, who led an expedition from Mexico into the Great Plains area in 1540-42.

The board gave final approval of the construction contract for the school which has been pared to $3,374,865. Lembke Construction Co. was the low bidder. Walter Kuenning, building consultant, said further savings may be made as construction progresses.

Maurice Baker, board president, pointed out that "Not one square foot of area has been cut from the school. Cost reductions represent substitutions of materials." The high school is to be completed in the fall of 1970.

When the new school is ready for use, a change in districting will be necessary. The board decided to appoint a citizen's advisory committee to make recommendations for redrawing high school boundary lines. The board will maintain final responsibility for the redistricting, according to Baker. A study is planned before the committee is appointed. Board members said they want a committee that will represent a cross section of the city's population.

Carlisle Guy was appointed as architect for Junior High School Number 9 which is to be located in the Vista Grande area. Students in that area are currently bused to Emerson Junior High School.

Doherty said the district will need a 10th junior high school in the future, between Washington Irving Junior High and the new school, and that another westside high school will be necessary following that.

The district announced the purchase of property on King Street consisting of 9.22 acres for a cost of $50,710 including improvements. No immediate plans are being made for use of the property, but a future elementary school is planned for that area.

Irving Junior High School will be expanded by six classrooms which are to be completed by the fall of 1969. Lusk & Wallace, Architects, have been appointed to design the addition.

The board renewed its contract for services from the Federal Liaison Service of Colorado. Harlan Ochs, board member, said that it was largely due to the efforts of the service's director, William Hinckley, that the district received the $1.1 million in federal funds from the P.L. 815 program for building funds in impacted areas. The grant will probably be used for the new junior high school.

Bids were opened on demolition, excavation and compaction of the Palmer High School site. Apparent low bidder was Porter & Winters Wrecking, $14,999. The low bid was protested by Cutkomp Bros., Inc., the second lowest bidder at $19,450, as no addenda was acknowledged by the low bidder. The matter was tabled in order to secure a written legal opinion on whether the formal acknowledgment is necessary. Robert Anderson, attorney for the school district, verbally okayed the bid. Action was delayed until a special meeting at 11:30 a.m. Monday.

Other bidders were Adams Excavating, Inc., $24,380; Douglas Jardine, Inc., $24,782; and Hadden Construction Co., $39,000.

Requests for early optional retirement were granted to Harold H. Waite, Wasson High School, effective Sept. 1, 1969; Marjorie Tudor, principal of Jefferson School, effective Sept. 1, 1969; and Helen Spaulding, physical education, Wasson High School, effective Sept. 1, 1969. Others retiring at that time are Gus E. Jackson, director of music education; Fred H. Matthiesen, principal of Garfield School; and Zella V. Ragsdale, Wasson High School.

Mao Reported Too Ill to Return Home

HONG KONG (UPI)—The Chinese language newspaper Truth Daily said today Communist Chinese Chairman Mao Tse-tung is seriously ill in an undisclosed city in the interior of China.

Quoting "authoritative sources" from the mainland, the anti-Communist newspaper said Mao collapsed during an inspection tour late last year and has remained too ill to return to Peking.

The report is similar to other reports and rumors about Mao's illness or death that have been heard in this colony for more than a year.

"Authoritative sources said Mao Tse-tung has been saved from the danger of death," the newspaper said in reporting Mao's illness. "The doctors said he is not in the instant danger of death but needs a complete rest. Therefore, up to the middle of January, Mao Tse-tung could not return to Peking.

"The sources said Mao Tse-tung is still seriously ill. He cannot receive guests."

The newspaper said Defense Minister Lin Piao and Premier Chou En-lai were directing the government and handling other official duties.

RUMORS

HONG KONG (AP) — Rumors that Mao Tse-tung is critically ill or dead are sweeping through China again, travellers reaching Hong Kong from the mainland said today.

No confirmation of the rumors was possible. Mao is now 75.

Similar reports have circulated periodically for the past 10 years.

Marine helicopters and Ventura County sheriff's ground searchers hunted victims of flood-swollen Sespe Creek.

The bodies found Wednesday were identified as those of Deputy Sheriff Chester Larson, 34, a veteran outdoorsman and father of two sons; U.S. Forest Ranger James A. Still missing were Robert Cassol, 14; his brother Ronald, 13; Frank Donato, 13; and Navy Chief Petty Officer Robert Sears, a wounded Vietnam veteran who was driving the rescue bulldozer when it stalled in the rampaging stream.

discussion to a military de-escalation of the war and an attempt to restore effectiveness of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) as a neutral zone separating the two Vietnams, the sources said.

Lodge also was meeting today and Friday with New Zealand Prime Minister Keith J. Holyoake, due in Saigon from a trip to Europe.

Lodge conferred with South Korean and Australian diplomats Wednesday and U.S. officials said he was explaining President Nixon's policy toward the talks to the nation's allies.

Lodge also planned to talk with Ky as soon as he arrived from Saigon where he has been on a month's home leave.

Also on Lodge's agenda for conferences were Thailand and the Philippines diplomats.

Colorado Loses 6,000 Farms in One Decade

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Colorado Corp and Livestock Reporting Service said today the number of farms in Colorado has dropped to 31,000, a loss of 6,000 in the past 10 years.

The decline amounted to 500 between 1967 and 1968, the report said.

In 1935, there were 63,000 farms in Colorado. By the end of this year, estimates indicate the total will fall to 30,500.

However, total land in Colorado farms in 1968 remained unchanged at 39.5 million acres, the report showed. That is the same level as for the past five years, although the total is 1.4 million acres less than 10 years ago.

The average size of a Colorado farm now is 1,274 acres, 20 acres larger than in 1967. The size is expected to increase this year to 1,295 acres. In 1934, the average farm size in Colorado was 473 acres.

Twins Sorted Out at Last in Detroit

By THOMAS D. ELIAS

DETROIT (AP) — A long "ummm-hmmm" and a satisfied "ah-haaa" from a fingerprint expert Monday spelled the end of weeks of double trouble for a Detroit couple.

"This one is Terry," announced Patrolman Wilmer Kroll, after checking out footprint records at the hospital where they were born. "And this one is Tracy."

The nine words meant the end of weeks of worry for Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Bruce, who couldn't tell their six-month-old daughters apart.

The trouble started when Mrs. Bruce gave her twins a bath. Unfortunately, she washed off the spot of nail polish she'd been using to tell Terry from Tracy. Quickly, she replaced the polish.

But then her husband and mother-in-law stepped in saying she'd polished the wrong girl. After days and weeks of worry, a police fingerprint man was called in.

"It kind of worried me a bit when I couldn't tell them apart," Mrs. Bruce understated. "I was afraid it might never stop causing the kids trouble if we just named them randomly again."

The twins themselves greeted their identification with enthusiastic whimpers. They may not be quite so happy when they find out what's in store for one of them next.

Though the parents promptly asked for plastic infant ID bracelets from the hospital, they're taking no chances on a repeat.

"We hope to take them down to a tattoo parlor soon and have a little dot put on one of them. You never know if you'll be able to tell them apart naturally in the future and I'd hate to go through all this again," Mrs. Bruce said.

Current El Paso County Highway Construction Totals $8 Million

On-going highway and road construction in El Paso County totals more than $8 million, the Colorado Highway Department in Pueblo announced Wednesday.

That's more than doubled the amount of work that was considered in this stage five years ago at this same time, District Engineer Walt Harris said.

Major projects include:

—Manitou Bypass, extension of 31st Street, figured to scale approximately $5 million by the time it is completed in late 1969, to be ready for business in early 1970.

—10 miles of roadway, intermittently linked throughout the county with the Federal Highway and Interstate System, at an estimated cost of $2.5 million.

—Some seven miles of I-25, south of Colorado Springs, repaving and bituminous overlay, at a cost of half a million.

—Preliminary work, including acquisition and research accumulation to provide a massive interchange south of Colorado Springs, near the south entrance to Ft. Carson.

Beyond this sizable outlay, the highway department said, El Paso County and Colorado Springs is figured to receive in excess of a $20 million outlay within the next five years.

That outlay referred to by the highway officials is expected to focus on monies El Paso County and Colorado Springs will receive as its allocated portion of Federal Highway Users Trust Fund money.

El Paso's portion of the Trust Fund is based on both a population count and an assessed valuation tax base. El Paso is the second largest county of the 63 in the state and will receive an amount proportionately second only to Denver County, the highway department officials estimated.

Those monies are part of the larger pool of $74 million-plus the state is expected to receive within the next fiscal session, starting in July, from the Federal Trust Fund.

In anticipation of receiving that money, the state lawmakers are, even at this moment, preparing legislation that will raise the gasoline tax rate from six cents a gallon to seven cents in order to amass the necessary matching funds Colorado needs in order to become eligible for the $74 million.

By far the largest job the highway department is tackling at the moment is the Manitou Bypass. The bypass is an extension of 31st Street, from there to Manitou Avenue, then to the area of Rainbow Falls and from that point linking up with the four-lane divided Ute Pass Road.

Acquisition of rights on that project, alone, are figured to cost in excess of $2 million when the final count is in. Beyond that, the three phases of the project are estimated to cost a cool $1 million each.

The bituminous overlay job on the seven-mile stretch of I-25, south of Colorado Springs, a task that has occupied the highway department's mopping up crew for more than seven months, involves thick-laden repaving and heavy bituminous overlay.

A major project that even now the highway department is researching concerns the controversial Midland Expressway and two feeder streets: 21st and 25th Streets. This cause celebre goes back more than a year. It involves repeated attempts by west siders to have 25th Street reopened onto the expressway.

Later, it developed the highway department wanted to close 21st Street in the bargain, prompting an outcry from west siders. Now, it appears that the highway department is willing to keep 21st Street reopened, but is researching installation of an interchange at 25th Street.

Such a project, it is estimated even in a preliminary stage, would amount to an expenditure of more than $2 million.

Rancher Is Elected To Bank Board

Frederick M. Farrar, Black Forest rancher and attorney, was elected vice chairman of the Board of Directors of The Exchange National Bank Tuesday at the bank annual meeting.

J. D. Ackerman, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the bank, also announced the election of two other members to the Board of Directors: Bob Johnston, Jr., a rancher from Pueblo, and Oliver P. LeCompte, Colorado Springs, president of Transit Mix.

Both Farrar and Johnston are originating partners of the new Southern Colorado Banking Co., which has applied for permission to operate as a holding company. The Exchange National Bank is one of four banks in Colorado Springs and Pueblo that is part of the company.

Reelected to the Board were Ackerman; T. M. Collier, retired lumberman; Jon W. Frost, owner of Frost Livestock Company; Perry P. Greiner, partner, Rhea Greiner Company; Frank J. Lynch, chairman of the board of Red Seal, Inc.; T. Eugene McCleary, owner, Motor Parts and Supply Company; Andrew Marshall, Jr., general manager, Union Land and Grazing Company; O. D. Olson, president of the bank; Karl R. Ross, president, Myron Stratton Home; C. William Schlosser, president, Western Forge Company; Harry Scurr, president, Scurr-Messenger Associates; Stan Selby, assistant vice president of Western Operations of Hewlett Packard Company; William C. Richardson, president of Aircraft Mechanics, Inc.; and Grant H. Winne, executive vice president of the bank.

Ackerman told stockholders of "another year of significant growth for The Exchange National Bank during 1968." He pointed to the increase in deposits to $51.7 million, the increase in loans to $26 million, the increase in capital assets to $4.4 million and the climb in trust department assets to $53 million.

In describing the need for today's commercial banks to render "full services" to their customers, Ackerman pointed out how The Exchange National Bank had now grown to a bank with all banking services. He cited the purchase of Intermountain Mortgage Company, the ability to render complete data processing services through the bank's own Rocky Mountain Computer Company, the 24-hour, round-the-clock drive-up deposit service, the convenient walk-up window, the expanded and convenient TV Motor Bank for quick and convenient drive-up banking customers, and the enlarged trust department.

"We have just completed 80 years of uninterrupted banking service on the corner of Pikes Peak and Tejon," Ackerman told stockholders. "This community has enjoyed solid growth during this time, particularly the past 10 years, and it has been our privilege to share in this growth. We pledge an even more progressive approach to the future and look ahead with renewed optimism," he concluded.

'No Terminal Point to Planning' Is PPACG Concept of Its Activities

By RAY BROUSSARD
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

The Pikes Peak Area Council of Governments (PPACG), in a special meeting Wednesday, focused long and hard on a "where are we right now" status report. Emphasized was PPACG's concept that "you don't look for an end to planning, there is no terminal point. It goes on as long as there are economic and social changes in the area."

Pinpointed, however, were three hard-core objectives PPACG is holding steadfast to:

1-Prevent uncontrolled growth resulting in costly cures.

2-Seize the opportunities for orderly and meaningful development.

3-Incorporate scientific planning data to capitalize on potentials of the future.

Also scanned, or labored, during the three-hour meeting:

—Land use and transportation planning.

—Policy activities.

—Water and sewer plans.

—Peterson Field study.

—Metropolitan review and program formulation.

—PPACG concepted attitude of its review policies for various entity - applications for Federal aid monies.

—PPACG by-laws (and what they allow) and review of past year's activities.

—Projected creation of a citizens advisory committee "that will influence and aid regional planning of the future."

On the last item mentioned, PPACG board members envisioned that a tentative draft could be drawn up by the time the next meeting rolls around (Jan. 29 at the county building) considering all alternatives as to how the citizens advisory committee might be formed and from what pooling source in the community and area its members might be drawn.

By and large, the advisory committee (lay and technical people not directly associated with PPACG or other planning groups) would function as a "massive suggestion box." It's also envisioned that the advisory group might encompass between 25 to 50 people.

Are you little fellers worried about inflation? Well, you don't need to worry about it if you just follow the simple advice in the latest issue of "The Family Banker" newsletter. Just consider this wonderful 7-point program.

"—Decline to buy those things you know in your heart you don't need." If you know in your heart you can go barefooted don't buy shoes.

"—Housewife's should avoid impulse buying while wheeling the grocery cart." Don't buy that sack of beans just because they look good. Weigh the purchase carefully in your mind and stomach. Miss a meal once in awhile.

"—Take advantage of sales and specials." Yes, run all over town and waste more gas and shoe-leather (if you are wearing shoes) to get a special price on cigarettes. (Better still, stop smoking. But that comes under a different dept.)

"—Keep close rein on credit." Most major banks have just raised their prime interest rates to a record 7 percent. Therefore, if you need a home, forget it. Pitch a tent to live in, if you can get by the zoning board.

"—Watch for money leaks." They suggest your children can do without that box of snack food. (Malnutrition in this country also comes under a different dept.)

"—Consider shifting more of your money to lasting investments." Are you little fellers overloaded with a strong financial base? Put a few hundred thousand into quality stocks or mutual savings.

Well, there you have the basic way to beat inflation. Stop that foolish impulse buying of food, shelter and clothing. Stop this upswing! Don't you know it is eroding every dollar in your pocket?

Utilities Board Advised of Fracture in Homestake Dam

The Colorado Springs Utility Board Wednesday authorized Ray Nixon to discuss with the Bectall Consulting Co. the feasibility of repairing a fracture in the Homestake Dam.

According to Nixon, director of Public Utilities, the dam has developed a fracture that allows 25 second-feet of water to escape.

Nixon said the department is prohibited by law from going beneath the dam to recover the water, and added that about 2,500 acre-feet of water escapes from the dam each year.

The board also authorized employment of Woodward-Clyde and Associates to make an analysis of the dam after negotiations with the Bectall firm. The San Francisco firm was hired by the city as a consultant for the original construction.

Nixon told the board that the fracture may have occurred becaus of dynamite explosions in a rock quarry adjacent to the dame. He also noted that an agreement existed with the Colorado Fish and Game Department in which the city allowed the release of 10 second-feet of water from the dam into the stream.

"If this 10 second-feet could be incorporated into the seepage, it wouldn't be too bad," Nixon said. "But the existing law has forbidden this too."

The board also authorized the utilities director to talk with the developers of the Paradise Valley Subdivision in connection with a request to furnish the area with water.

The board was reluctant to assume the cost of laying a $90,000 pipe line across 2,500 feet of undeveloped land. Nixon was instructed to tell the developers of the subdivision that the line would be installed if they would assume the original cost. The company would then be re-imbursed over a 10-year period.

In other action, the department was granted authorization to have its property on west Costilla Street cleaned up, in an attempt to reduce an existing fire hazard. At one time, the water works was located on the property.

The board also voted to participate in the Pikes Peak Regional Science Fair, and allowed a $100 expenditure for the project.

However, it did decline to purchase advertising space in the annual Industrial Progress edition sponsored by the Gazette Telegraph.

Councilman Larry Ochs said the idea was interesting in that the advertisement might entice outside industry into the city.

But Mayor Eugene McCleary claimed that the expenditures wasn't necessary, because the Chamber of Commerce duplicated the information and took it to the outside areas.

In final action, the board granted a request by Bruce Sommers to construct a hiking path across the northern part of the department's property. The path involves 200-300 yards of property in the Waldo Canyon area.

Mrs. Jones Will Head Regional Library Body

Mrs. Gerald Jones of the Pikes Peak Regional Library District was elected chairman of the Plains and Peaks Public Library System advisory council at a recent meeting at Penrose Public Library.

Other new officers elected included Mrs. Ralph Knight, Security, vice-chairman; Mrs. Wayne Summers, Hugo, secretary; and Mrs. Douglas Straub, Limon, treasurer.

Appointed as advisory council committee chairmen were Mrs. Douglas Straub, Limon, budget; Mrs. Henry Mead, Castle Rock, community education; Mrs. Floyd Shepherd, Elizabeth, extension; Mrs. Gerald Jones, Colorado Springs, evaluation; and Mrs. Ralph Knight, Security, policy review.

Other libraries that were represented at the meeting included Park County, Lake George, Manitou Springs and the Colorado State Library.

The system is financed by federal and state funds operating this year on a budget of $41,818. The Council passed a resolution supporting this year's State Library budget request of $700,000 for state grants to public libraries. The Plains and Peaks Public Library System services schools, libraries and communities in Park, Teller, Douglas, Elbert, Lincoln, and El Paso Counties. Charles Grasmick system librarian, said the system has two bookmobiles in operation — one serving Park County and the other serving Lincoln, Douglas and Elbert Counties. The latter bookmobile during the past three months traveled an average of 1,200 miles per month serving communities at a cost of 23.2 cents per book.

The council began discussion of the cooperative programs of the highest priority for the next fiscal year to bring improved library service to the residents of the 6 county area the system serves. The maximum budget anticipated for the system if the $700,000 request is approved by the State Legislature is $36,799. Last year the system operated on a budget of $41,818. The larger requested total grant this year would be divided among seven library systems now covering the state.

The service made possible through local libraries cooperating in system planning are: a state-wide reference network now extending to school and public libraries; easily accessible book outlets, particularly in the rural area through bookmobile service; availability of new popular fiction and non-fiction books by rotating book collections; and walk-in privilieges to any library patron in any of th nine public libraries in the system area.

Lions Club Protests CC Activities

The Colorado Springs Lions Club this week adopted a resolution "strongly" protesting the "profanity, indecency, vulgarity, nudeness and lack of respect for the United States" exhibited during portions of the Colorado College Symposium on Violence last week.

Charles E. Kaufman, secretary of the club, said copies of the resolution were being sent to the board of trustees and other officials at CC.

The resolution read as follows:

Be it resolved that the Colorado Springs Lions Club strongly protests against the profanity, indecency, vulgarity, nudeness and lack of respect for the United States exhibited at certain sessions of the Symposium on Violence conducted by the Colorado College last week, and respectfully urges that the Colorado College shall not approve, countenance, or permit similar conduct on its campus in the future.

Two Theft Cases Reported to Police

Colorado Springs police are investigating two cases of theft of items from a motor vehicle.

William Bruce Peterson, Denver, reported that his 1967 vehicle was entered while parked at the Ramada Inn parking lot Wednesday night and an overcoat, two suits, an attache case containing company records and a sample bag of lady's lingerie were stolen.

The items were valued at $590.

Michael Lester McCoy, 328 E. Arvada St., reported that his 1967 automobile was jacked up while it was parked at his home and four magnesium rims, four tires and 20 chrome lug bolts removed from it.

The stolen items were valued at $260.

Dear Maverick:

I couldn't agree more with the concerned citizens who wrote to you about the USO's disrespect to the flag. The effort and time the USO workers are spending is a part of their job, and I believe it is the duty of concerned citizens who care about the flag of the United States of America. You could have offered a better solution than for them to take a G.I. out to lunch.

Sgt. D.T.

Sorry, podnah, I don't agree. To me actions speak louder than words. Respect to an outward symbol is all right and no disrespecf in intended. But people are more important than symbols, words, or trappings. If you feel so strongly about it why don't you offer your help to the USO? The information has been passed along but I still think that helping a lonely soldier is more important.

Dear Maverick:

In the months ahead, and until completion of the new courthouse we shall probably read a lot concerning the disposition of the present courthouse.

It has been refreshing to note that thus far at least one qualified architect has expressed himself in favor of retention the present courthouse, and belief of its sound structure. An attempt has been made to lead us to believe that 66 years is ancient for a building. This is not necessarily true if the structure is basically sound. There are numerous century-old building in nations older than ours

The sum of $35,000 per annum has been mentioned as being the amount required to maintain the old courthouse after completion of the new one. This figure has been presented in such a manner as to give the impression it may break our financial backs. The question is asked where is the money to come from? Well, where does the money come from to build our expensive new schools, new courthouse, financing of the Pikes Peak Area Council of Government, or sending convention delegates to places as far away as Hawaii? Silly questions, of course. My feeling is that in due time the taxpayers should have a chance on retention of the present courthouse, if that would be required to save it.

Now for the $64 question, Maverick. If all the state capitol and county courthouse buildings over half a century old were to be destroyed, how many would there left?

O.S.

Well, podnah, in answer to how many state capitols and county courthouses would be left if all over half a century old were destroyed the answer would be "mighty few."

Can't see spending money at all for new courthouses, jails, reform schools, etc. We're supposed to be civilized people and if all the money spent on education, schools, rehabilitation, raising the wages of our lawmakers, welfare and poverty programs doing any good at all —then we shouldn't be needing a new courthouse or a new jail. In fact, the ones we have ought to be echoing with emptiness with a lack of something to do. They should be museums.

Now, if all this billions and billions spent isn't doing any good and we're only going to need a bigger courthouse and a bigger and more modern jail — then this old cowboy thinks maybe we'd better stop and take a long. . . . long. . . . look before we spend.

Dear Maverick:

Re: Your response to Cable TV in the 7 January Gazette.

Perhaps you are another one of those who doesn't know the difference when you see the way this "Private' 'group cuts up the streets, alleys, etc. and then does a very slip shod job, at best, on the patch back.

Who do you think pays for fixing the streets and parkings? Obviously not "Private Enterprise TV." I'm 100 per cent for Private Enterprise, but let them "Pay" their way; not dump the clean up back on the Taxpayers.

This same philosophy applies to all these "Do Gooders" who like to cut up the streets.

W.E.F.

Podnah, the Cable TV people are paying for the repair of those streets and alleys. The city crews are doing the work but

CARAMELIZED ONIONS

For a deliciously different flavor in creamed onions, sugar-carmelize enough parboiled white onions for 4 to 6 servings by sprinkling them with 1 teaspoon of white sugar and browning slowly in ¼ cup of fat. Transfer onions to casserole. Add ¼ cup of water to pan; cook and stir until deglazed. Pour on onions with 1 cup of seasoned, thin cream sauce. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 30 minutes.

Pro USO Volunteer Trains in Springs

By DOROTHY ALDRIDGE
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

"I love the Pikes Peak region and the friendly people who live here. I think the staff of the local USO Club is great, but I especially like the servicemen — they're wonderful!"

This was a comment made by Miss Terrie Hutton, the first professional USO volunteer to be trained locally. She has spent the past four weeks observing and learning about the program of the USO Club of the Pikes Peak region at 211 E. Colorado Ave.

"The local club has a homelike atmosphere," she continued, "and those servicemen share anything, good or bad, with you. They may not like being in military service, but they can enjoy their off-time hours. And many of them choose to spend those hours involved in USO Club activities."

Miss Hutton said that she became interested in USO when she was invited to Washington, D.C., to work in the Bureau of Educational Personnel Development on a program for the development of a new teacher training program under the Professional Educational Development Act which was passed Feb. 1, 1968. She attended the annual meeting of national USO directors held in Norman, Okla., last September. After a five-week orientation period she volunteered to go overseas with USO

"Not all stateside clubs are the same," she explained. "While the local club is comparable to clubs in other cities, and provides a bird's-eye view of them, I just came from a club which is similar to clubs in Vietnam. It was in Jacksonville, N.C. Sometimes there were 3,000 men around the club on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and approximately 500 during week days."

"The atmosphere of the local club is entirely different," she said. "The staff observes the needs of servicemen and women and provides experiences to make them feel at home. The club provides a variety of activities which they can also experience."

Miss Hutton, who comes from Ladue, Mo., was educated at Religious of the Sacred Heart, the Sorbonne in Paris and the American College in Rome, where she received her master of arts (research). The only countries she has not visited are New Zealand, Australia and those in Asia.

She has been a high school teacher in St. Louis and has been in public relations for businesses, both professional and management. She was director of volunteers for St. John's Mercy Hospital, which has an 800-bed hospital that moves from city to city with headquarters in St. Louis. She was in charge of the volunteer program for this, which included the Pink Ladies, Gray Ladies and Candy-Stripers of the Red Cross.

Miss Hutton, who pointed out that there are 12 clubs in the country that are training professional volunteers, left Sunday for Mobile, Ala., where she will coordinate the activities of a new club. Over a two-year period her itinerary includes visits to clubs in Alaska, California, Okinawa, Vietnam and Thailand, where she will also open a new club.

Sheriff's Posse Holds Annual Dinner Dance

The annual El Paso County Sheriff's Posse dinner dance and inaugural ball was held Saturday evening at the Valley Hi Country Club. Guests included the County Commissioners, the officer of the Sheriff of El Paso County and other dignitaries of the county and city of Colorado Springs.

Ed McConnell, master of ceremonies, reviewed the activities of the past year. They included some 900 man hours of traffic control, crowd control, fire fighting details, guarding of county prisoners who were hospitalized and other aid to the County Sheriff's office. On at least three occasions the Sheriff's Posse was invited to make appearances outside the state.

Judge Jack Roeser addressed the group on the responsibility of a free society.

SANTA SUSANA, Calif. (AP) —Kris Cottingham, 7, got stuck in the mud while going to school Tuesday. Firemen had to build a plank runway to rescue him. Kris had taken a shortcut in a heavy rainstorm through a new subdivision site and sank up to his thighs. After a change of clothes, he arrived for classes —a bit late.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

God's Will Be Done

DEAR ABBY: I am a very religious person and believe that everything in his world happens as a result of God's plan and wishes. Am I wrong then to feel that when we fall ill, it is God's will and perhaps God is trying to punish us for some wrong-doing? That is why I never take any medicine. Why fight God's decision? If you can answer this, you are a genius.

HAS FAITH

DEAR HAS: I'm no genius, but ask yourself this: If your theory is right, why then did God give man the knowledge and power to conquer illness?

DEAR ABBY: I have been happily married to a big, good-looking Irishman for six years. We have two children. Mickey is a bartender, and I have never had any objections to the hours, temptations or anything like that until lately. His boss has told him to play up to the single women who come in — greet them with a big smile, a hug, and maybe a little smooch, and keep them sitting and buying drinks.

Well, there is one old widow who comes in nearly every night and stays until they close up. She's in no shape to get home on her own so Mickey takes her home. My question: Do you think Mickey has to go THIS far in the line of duty?

MICKEY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: How far does he go?

DEAR ABBY: A married male cousin of mine and his wife of some 40 odd years were visiting my husband and me for the weekend. While fully dressed and preparing breakfast, this married male cousin of mine came up behind me and surprised me with a kiss. No hug. Just a kiss.

I didn't think a thing of it, but after they had departed, my husband told me he saw "the whole thing." Then he became enraged because I hadn't thrown my cousin out of the house. He even said I must have encouraged my cousin and probably had further relations with him.

I assure you no such thoughts crossed my mind. Three years later my husband is still making nasty insinuations and accusations, and I am sick to death of hearing about it. What is your opinion of all this? We were all between 65 and 70 years of age, and the "kisser" is now dead. Thank you.

UNHAPPY

DEAR UNHAPPY: Don't be too hard on your husband on the chance that he is getting a bit addled in his old age. But when he starts with the ugly accusations, let him talk to himself.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "C K": It's useless to tell a grown daughter, "If you ever get into any trouble, come to me first." For if the proper relationship has been built over the years, she will. If it hasn't, the words will be meaningless.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Demonstrators March in Delaware

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — About 300 demonstrators wound their way through Wilmington's rainy streets Tuesday to protest the 10-month presence of National Guard troops. The guard was no longer there. Newly installed Gov. Russell W. Peterson removed the troops, promising to bring them back if needed.

The protest march was organized by Project Communications Network and the People Against Racism. The two groups termed Wilmington the "first military police state in the United States."

Negroes in this community of 95,000 did not participate in the march. Wilmington is 40 per cent black.

The guard was activated last April 8 by Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr., to help quell racial unrest which followed the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and had patrolled predominantly Negro sections of the city since the assassination.

The watch reportedly cost the state an estimated $600,000.

BATTLE

The police said the clash resulted from an old standing feud between the two groups. Three men were killed on each side.

Dear Maverick:

Since it seems you are willing to accept just small contributions for the gentleman who assisted the policemen, I am adding my bit, hoping that many others will do the same. ($1)

N.C.

Mighty willing and thank you kindly. If folks such as yourself send in these small amounts then the CATLE (Citizens Aid to Law Enforcement) Fund will be in great shape. The great good that has come out of this tragedy has been wonderful to watch! Especially, since we asked aid at a time when folks were pretty nearly "aided" out, what with all the other fund drives, calls for charity at Christmastime and all that stuff. This has been from the very first, individual efforts, small personal contributions, (although there have been some large ones, too!) but mostly just folks, who appreciated the fact that a man was willing to help others in trouble — even to the point of endangering his own life.

Dear Maverick:

Could you tell me where to write to get on the TV game show "Let's Make a Deal?" Also, how does one get into the actual participation?

Dear Maverick:

In regards to the lady wishing to find a malamute Alaskan Huskie: her problems are over and possibly mine. I have two aged 7 months and although we are greatly attached to them our landlord is not. Therefore, we are very concerned to find lovable owners for each of them. Unfortunately, the price of malamutes is quite high but we will be willing to part with our dogs at a low price.

We've mailed several letters to the lady concerning malamutes (didn't know there were so many hereabouts) so she can make the decision.

'No Planning Terminal Point' PPACG Says

and his assistant H. E. (Bud) Owsley, outlined for the group what the current status of various activities are. Meehan emphasized the larger regional planning picture and Owsley, who heads up the transportation study, handled that angle.

Stan Johnson (an attorney who also is mayor of Palmer Lake and chairman of the PPACG board) told those in attendance that "the prime objective of the special meeting is to bring those concerned up to date, give a review of the status and tell us where we are right now."

Meehan said that the central analytical concept of the transportation study is that there is a direct and measurable relationship between land use, socio-economic factors and travel habits and patterns.

The PPACG director pointed out that in an attempt to determine this relationship, both the local planning agencies and the Colorado Department of Highways have been working concurrently on the 10 basic elements of comprehensive transportation planning.

Emphasized was the fact that the local area has solved one of its commitments by producing the necessary factors for the base year of the study. The factors have been submitted, it was pointed out, to the state office so that a gravity model (a computer) can be calibrated. The gravity apparatus is a mathematical model that will simulate 1964 traffic patterns in the transportation area.

Importantly, as it was pointed out, it is up to the local area now to prepare, by June of this year, the same factors for the same statistical units (traffic districts) for the target date of 1990.

A land use plan must be developed to meet these obligations, Meehan said. The plan is to be based on "sound policy decisions and guidelines developed by the citizenry and elected officials. With our budget of this year, I want to emphasize that we aren't using a crystal ball."

He said the combined planning team of PPACG, county and city planning staffs are using "educational tools and scientific knowledge to project economy, population and land use forecasts. Policies objectives, principals and physical plans—these are the things that we are developing."

—"To meet events, to accomplish things and to avoid uncontrolled development," both Meehan and Johnson emphasized as the prime objectives of the whole planning process.

The generalized sequence of events involved in the 10 basic elements of comprehensive transportation, land use planning, Meehan outlined this way:

—Presentation of inventory data to combined staffs.

—Determination if additional data is required.

—Analyze data and prepare tentative conclusions.

—Appoint policy committee or committees.

—Present tentative conclusions to combined staffs.

—Present tentative conclusions to policy committees and PPACG.

—Prepare policy statements.

—Present policies to PPACG.

—Prepare land plan that reflect policies and adopted plans.

—Present plan to PPACG and committees.

—Prepare small area forecasts for CSMATS (Colorado Springs Area Transportation Study that Owsley heads up for PPACG).

Owsley concentrated on the following progress:

1-The necessary land use and socio-economic factors for the base year have been completed and submitted to the state.

2-Economic analysis is progressing with concentration on three crucial areas of economy: military, manufacturing and tourism.

3-The land use analysis has been turned over to the planning team. They have begun the task of evaluating all previous inventories and analysis and determining what work is remaining to meet the needs of the land use development plan process.

4-The graphics of the financial report have been almost completed, Owsley said. Finalizing this report has been given a low priority and it won't be published until after the land use plan is completed.

5-No progress on mass transit because the other factors of the study have to be correlated before work can begin on this phase.

Meehan said "everything is based on a continuous study. There never is a final plan. Areas continue to be developed. Politics, sociological and economic changes dictate continuous planning."

But the four essentials upon which everything is predicated, said Meehan, are: research and analysis; policy formulation; comprehensive plan development; and plan implementation.

Area encompassed by the PPACG study, it was pointed out, contains 96 per cent of the total Pikes Peak area population and urban sprawl. This includes Manitou Springs, Colorado Springs, Woodland Park, Green Mountain Falls and Fountain.

There are 268 traffic districts in the study area, encompassing 722 zones. The latter figure was unworkable, the planners said, so they concentrated on traffic districts as a measurable component part of the overall study.

As a sidelight, Owsley pointed out that there are 5,000 commercially zoned areas with only 800 used. "But that's typical of zoning in a look-ahead movement," he observed.

Involved in the meeting was a discussion of procedures PPACG should follow in reviewing applications to Federal agencies for grants. The council of governments is asked from time to time to review applications which have been filed by local governmental units for Federal assistance.

The review requirement was made mandatory with congressional passage of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966. Under Title 11, Section 204 of the act, all applications for Federal loans must be submitted for review to the areawide agency designated to perform metro or regional planning for the area. Here, that function is relegated to PPACG.

Meehan submitted a tentative draft of a memorandum "which specifies a procedure and establishes minimum requirements for submitting applications for review." The reason he asked for this involves the fact that several area towns, namely Palmer Lake and its adjacent Lakeview Heights and Monument all wound up applying (without telling PPACG) for Federal loans for sewerage treatment plants in the same geographical area.

In the area of citizens advisory committee, the group purportedly will look more closely into this at the next meeting. No one knows for sure from which groups the committee members will be drawn, but presumable civic clubs, conservation groups, technical outlets around town.

The basic intent of the proposal is to provide a means where the citizens of the area, through active involvement — Meehan said — could:

— Inform themselves of PPACG activities.

—Assist in developing objectives and goals for regional development and re-development.

—Assist in defining community opportunity areas.

—Assist in defining regional problems.

—Assist in the formulation of solutions to the various regional problems.

Also in attendance at the meeting were several members of the Springs Area Beautiful Association (SPABA), including Art Anderson.

Police Chief In Florence Resigns

Police Chief Leonard Willis of Florence, who has been on the city staff since June of 1966, this week resigned.

The resignation will become effective Feb. 1, City Manager Carl Meyers reported.

Appointed to succeed Chief Willis is Max Martinez, who has been employed by the city for seven years with one 11-month break when he served as a deputy sheriff for Roy Enslow.

A native of Fremont county, Martinez was born at Portland and was graduated from Florence High school in 1946. He served in the U.S. Marine Corps after graduation and from 1953 to 1957 was employed by civil service at Oceanside, Calif.

Following the death of his first wife, Max, who is the son of the late Ben Martinez and Mrs. Isabelle Martinez, returned to Florence with his son, Jerry. In 1960 he was married to the former Esther Villagrana. The couple have two daughters, Teresa, 6, and Linda, 4.

Martinez is a member of the Florence Elks Lodge and the Southern Colorado Law Enforcement Officers association.

Willis, who is a retired army sergeant and one of the nation's top rifle marksmen, has not announced his future plans.

Girl Insists On Entering Boys' School

NEW YORK (AP) — Three weeks ago, Alice DeRivera, 13, came home and told her parents she wanted to transfer from the high school she now attends to an all-boys school noted for its math department.

"I reminded her she had to have her parents' consent," said Alice's father, Joseph, a psychologist. "So we sat down and had about an hour's discussion. She convinced me."

Wednesday, Alice, backed by her parents, won the right to at least take the admission test for Stuyvesant High School. A court hearing will be held next month to determine whether she'll actually be allowed to enter the school.

Alice, who scored in the 99th percentile in a citywide math test, claims her present school —John Jay High in Brooklyn— "doesn't suit me intellectually."

She said she thought it would be good for the 2,200 boys at Stuyvesant to have a girl around—"It would make them more competitive," she said—and her father agreed.

"She has a lot of poise," DeRivera said in an interview, "and what we're all hoping is that it won't belong before there are other girls there."

Supreme Court Justice Irving L. Levey disagreed. "I think you're doing a great injustice to this child," he said, adding, "It would be very uncomfortable for her in an all-boys school."

Nevertheless, Levey set Feb. 26 for a hearing on the constitutional questions involved in a girl seeking to attend a boy's school. The Board of Education agreed to let Alice take a standardized entrance exam Thursday. The results will apply if the court ruling goes in Alice's favor.

Alice has two sisters and a brother. DeRivera's father is a math teacher. Asked if anyone else in the family was such a prodigy, DeRivera said, "Wait a minute. She's bright. But she's no genius."

At 11:15 Wednesday night her father said, "She's in bed. She has to be in bed by 10.

Bids To Be Opened On Feb. 6

Drainage bids for work on the 31st Street storm drainage project will be opened at 2 p.m. Feb. 6.

Officials of the City Public Works Department announced the opening date for bids. Plans and specifications for the project will be available at the City Public Works Department this Friday afternoon.

Construction will consist of about 1,350 feet of 8 by 25 foot reinforced concrete channel from Echo Lane to Fountain Creek, including inlet and outlet structures and pre-stressed deck sections at street intersections.

There will also be an alternate in the bidding to provide for a multi-plate arch over the channel, which would put it in the same category almost as a big drainage pipe.

The drainage project is in an area where flood damage has occurred from time to time in the past 15 years and is made possible from city sales tax revenues.

This will be the fifth major storm drainage project made possible by sales tax revenues. The 30th Street project from King Street to Camp Creek was completed last year at a cost of about $100,000. More recently finished was the $104,795 South Tejon Street drainage.

Currently under construction is a $279,000 Little Shooks Run project and one for $161,700 on Van Buren Street.

The Little Shooks Run project will take seven years to finish while the one on Van Buren is a five year project. Additional contracts will be advertised each year as funds become available.

Also planned this year is bids on the West Kiowa and 29th Street drainge project, officials said.

Mrs. Lena Abeyta Named Colorado Heart Mother

Mrs. Lena Abeyta, 44, Canon City, has been selected for the 1969 Colorado Heart Mother.

Mrs. Abeyta, wife of a disabled war veteran and a mother, is considered a living symbol of the value of intensive heart research supported by the Heart Fund dollars.

Born in La Garita, she suffered from rheumatic fever when she was 15, although it was not diagnosed as such until many years later. In 1947, heart valve damage was discovered.

Despite this, Mrs. Abeyta became the mother of four children now ranging in age from 13 to 21.

In 1966, surgeons replaced one of her heart valves and opened another in open heart surgery. In the next two months, following this operation, she had three more major operations for other physical ailments.

Today, she does all her own housework and has hobbies including fishing and walking. The Colorado Heart Association took pride in announcing her the 1969 Colorado Heart Mother.

Otis J. Beard Died Early Today

Otis J. Beard, 55, 1300 W. Fillmore St., died at his home early today, the sheriff's department reported.

According to Detective Sgt. Franklin T. Ripley, a call was received from Mrs. Ferne Beard who said her husband had stopped breathing.

Ripley and Deputy Sheriff Howard Schafer went to the scene and applied mouth to mouth resusitation to no avail.

Mr. Beard had been suffering from the flu and had been under a doctor's care for some time. The body was taken to the Swan Mortuary and an autopsy will be performed later today.

Mrs. Ingle Services Will Be Friday

Mrs. Virginia L. Ingle, formerly of 3600 N. El Paso St., died Tuesday in a local hospital.

Mrs. Ingle was born Dec. 9, 1910 in Los Angeles, Calif.

She is survived by a son, James D. Butler of Colorado Springs; a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Beatrice Butler of Colorado Springs; and four granddaughters, Sherry, Loretta, Cynthia, and Barri Kay Butler.

Services will be held in the Swan Drawing Room Friday at 1 p.m. with entombment at Memorial Gardens.

Seals can stay under water for a good many minutes, if necessary, but usually do so for not more than five minutes.

LAW ENFORCEMENT FIRST — When the Footprinters announced the benefit dinner for Jesse James Morlan, representatives of law enforcement were the first in line to buy tickets. Footprinters Plan Benefit for Morlan

Dad Bruce Chapter of the International Footprint Association will stage a benefit dinner Feb. 2 at the Holiday Inn for Jesse James Morlan.

"We feel that because we are Footprinters, because of the very nature of our organization, we should do something to show our appreciation to his courageous man," Chuck Murphy, ramrod for the dinner said.

Morlan was wounded last fall while trying to aid police capture a fleeing bandit. The bandit shot Morlan resulting in a long hospitalization.

Surgery, hospital and medical bills as well as loss of income to Morlan, who was self-employed at the time, totaled more than $6,000.

Most of that money has been raised through the Citizens Aid to Law Enforcement Fund.

"But we don't think that's enough," John Arminante, district governor for the Footprinters said. "This man was willing to risk his life to help law enforcement. We think he deserves our recognition."

Frank Swanson, program chairman for the Footprinters here, said that all of the proceeds from the dinner will be turned over to Morlan at the dinner which will get underway at 6 p.m. at the Holiday Inn.

Tickets are $6 each.

Murphy said that tickets are available from the Sheriff's office or the City Police Department or from Footprinters.

"If someone is unable to pick up tickets themselves, we will be happy to deliver tickets to them," he said.

"This is something that every resident of this community should think about," Arminante said. "This man was trying to aid law and order, he was trying to help each one of us and we in turn should try to help him."

SOCIAL SECURITY TIP

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—It's important to know your Social Security status, Penn State University home management specialists note. Every family should have an accessible inventory of all important documents.

Certain documents are needed to make Social Security claims. Among them are: proof of age for both husband and wife; Social Security cards for both; marriage certificate; latest income tax withholding statement, and divorce papers of death certificates, where applicable.

Beaten Teacher Vows He Will Teach Again

NEW YORK (UPI)—A white teacher, beaten and set afire by three Negro youths, vowed from his hospital bed to be back to the high school where the incident occurred and continue teaching "all my students, black and white."

The teacher, Franc Siracuse, 30, said he was not going to run away from the problems at troubled Franklin K. Lane High School in Brooklyn and definitely would not transfer out.

"I'm going to keep teaching at the school," said Siracuse, a science teacher. "I have great rapport with all my students black and white."

Siracuse was reported in satisfactory condition today at LaGuardia Hospital where he was taken Monday with minor burns.

He said he was attacked in a stairwell of the building shortly after school opened Monday, when he ran out of his classroom to find out who had thrown a pebble through a window. Police have patroled the troubled school for the past 10 days.

Siracuse said he was kicked, punched and knocked to the floor by the three teen-age assailants who then sprayed him with lighter fluid from a water pistol.

Before fleeing one of the youths set his clothes afire with a cigarette lighter.

Siracusa said he smothered the flames by rolling on the floor then quickly peeled off his smoldering clothing.

The attack on Siracusa was the 14th incident at the high school, according to Harold Saltzman, chairman of the school chapter of the United Federation of Teachers.

Saltzman said that the chapter's executive committee, meeting after the attack Monday, had agreed to ask Principal Morton Solub to close the school for the rest of the week but that after talking to Solub it was decided to continue classes today at the school which has an enrollment of 5,600 pupils. About 66 per cent of them are Negroes.

Ex-Navy Chief Named Head Of Newspaper

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paul R. Ignatius, secretary of the Navy in the Johnson administration, has been named president of the Washington Post, only morning newspaper in the nation's capital.

The announcement was made Tuesday by Frederick S. Beebe, chairman of the board, and Katherine Graham, president of the Washington Post Co.

Ignatius, 48, who left the Pentagon Monday with the change in administrations, also becomes executive vice president of the Washington Post Co., a director and a member of its executive committee.

Besides the newspaper, the Washington Post Co., owns Newsweek Magazine, Post-Newsweek Stations, Inc., and other interests.

Mrs. Graham, the announcement said, assumes the title of publisher of the Post, a position once held by both her father, the late Eugene Meyer, and her husband, the late Philip L. Graham.

Ignatius will assume duties performed by John W. Sweetman, publisher of the newspaper since 1961 who has been named vice chairman of the board.

Ignatius, who will assume his new job March 1, was born in Los Angeles. He was named secretary of the Navy in 1967 after six years in various defense posts, including under secretary and assistant secretary of the Army and assistant secretary of defense.

He is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Southern California and a Navy carrier veteran of World War II.

The Girl Scouts begin their annual cookie sale Friday with five varieties available.

Last year 2,500 girls sold 24 tons of the cookies. Funds for the sale go towards maintaining two camps in the region: the camp at the Garden of the Gods and the Sky High Ranch, located north of Woodland Park.

A major portion of this year's funds will be used to install a new water system at the Sky High Ranch. At Present, the water is carried in five gallon cans and stored in lister bags.

The sale ends Feb. 3.

SLAM BID IS DANGEROUS

We imagine quite a few North American pairs reached a spade slam with today's North-South cards in the Charity tourney. Some North players might open one spade and proceed to six after a raise from partner.

Played from the North seat the slam is not too bad a contract. The location of the king of hearts doesn't matter because South can probably get rid of his queen of hearts on dummy's fourth diamond but since East held the queen of diamonds there is no way to bring home 12 tricks and the slam bidders will wind up in the soup.

North should open two no-trump with his very good 21 points. Some South players will pass and let North play two no-trump for a bad score. Those who don't use Stayman or the Jacoby transfer will respond three spades and will play at game after a raise from North. A diamond lead will hold them to four odd because the defense will take the first three tricks but most will make an overtrick after the normal club opening lead.

Stayman bidders will reach four spades with North as declarer after a three-club Stayman bid by South and three spade response by North.

The Jacoby Transfer bidders will also arrive at four spades with North as declarer. South will respond three hearts to the opening two no-trump bid. This bid shows spades and a hand of any strength from nothing on up.

North's normal reply to the three-heart transfer is a three-spade bid but this particular hand calls for stronger action. North should jump right to four spades to show that his two no-trump opening includes very good spades. Give South a slightly better hand and he will move toward a slam but with this holding South will pass contentedly.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

My! Such fussing and fuming over drying clothes in a dryer . . .

If everyone would stop being so lazy — they would have the problem solved.

Shaking each garment individually before putting it in the dryer will eliminate nearly all wrinkles.

Also never let clothes stand in the dryer once they are done.

Claire P. Dickey

I totally agree. Just wish I could shake your hand.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I put a few tablespoons of cornmeal in with my prepared pancake mix and what a delightful change!

My husband suggested this when I was short of buckwheat mix one morning.

Mae Beckam

Dear Heloise:

I tried it and it's great! We visited some friends in Fredericksburg, Virginia, and they made this type hotcake batter for us, and was it a dilly . . . we loved it.

They weren't as soggy as some pancakes are.

Heloise

Dear Hrloise:

To keep those slick charge plates (and they really are slick when you see how much you have charged at the end of the month) from slipping out of my billfold, I just wrapped a thin piece of plastic from a garment bag around each.

No more fumbling in the bottom of my purse now for that lost card.

Mrs. F. H.

Dear Heloise:

I have found another use for your wonderful nylon net:

When ironing heavily starched clothes you will find some things on which the starch will cake, or turn white and unsightly.

Take a piece of your lovely net and gently rub the article. Presto, the starch is gone, yet it does not ruin the stiffness you desire.

Rose

Dear Heloise:

Mothers of little boys have probably learned that even if the youngsters have a daily bath they usually leave a high-water mark on the tub.

So try this:

As soon as the water is in the tub, take a bar of soap and run it along the water edge as high as the water will splash! This seems to keep the soil from adhering to the tub and makes it extremely simple to wash the tub afterwards.

Mrs. J. McLearn

Ladies, I tried it. I used a soft-water bar soap, and as soon as the tub was filled, I gave the bar of soap to my niece so she could use her energy to run it around the bathtub water line . . .

After she had taken her bath, all we did was to take a sponge, run it around where she had marked the soap, and it did a beautiful cleaning job.

It's worth the effort.

Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise:

You have no doubt heard of tying a string around your finger so that you will not forget something?

Well, I have a better way.

Take your ring off and put it on the other hand, or put it on a different finger! You'll never forget.

Mrs. N. Riviera

Dear Heloise:

Recently, I noticed that my stainless steel flatware was very dull looking.

The knives appear to have bluish spots, somewhat like heat marks. The other pieces were just plain dull and icky looking.

Knowing I had nothing to lose . . . I decided to try a vinegar bath for the whole shebang!

I used approximately two cups of vinegar — full strength — in a bowl and soaked the handles of the knives first. I then reversed the knives so the blades would get into the vinegar bath.

Next . . . I dunked all the flatware in detergents suds. Then I used a clear hot water rinse and dried them immediately.

And do you know that every piece shines like new!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Address: Dr. T. R. Van Dellen, Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Illinois 60611. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

© 1969, By the Chicago Tribune

MORNING STIFFNESS

Jr. writes: "Every morning my hands, wrists, elbows, and back are stiff. I suppose this is age or arthritis, but if this is true, why does it go away after being up and about? My joints never hurt and there are no knobs like many of my arthritic friends complain about. Why does this stiffness develop?"

In the past, "rheumatics" and "old age" were blamed for this type of distress. After all, many oldsters and those with arthritis complain of stiffness on arising and after sitting in a chair for an hour or two. But there are other causes.

A Britisher, for example, noted that stiffness occurred with increased size of the hand caused by accumulation of fluid in the tissues. In addition, the hand was larger in the morning than in the evening. Because this is a normal phenomenon, it could explain why stiffness is noted in the absence of arthritis. It also may explain why stiffness is more marked when arthritis coexists.

The connective tissues lining and surrounding the joints are elastic. Cold, age, and a sluggish circulation may reduce the elasticity. Heat tends to relax the fibers; movement may improve the circulation and reduce the swelling in these tissues.

The individual with rheumatoid arthritis is most uncomfortable on first arising in the morning. It may take him 30 minutes to several hours to "limber up." The majority are at their best late in the morning or early in the afternoon. They may never be limber in the normal sense of the word and may have additional episodes of stiffening and aching after a nap or with fatigue in the late afternoon or evening.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

BONESWASTING AWAY

P.M. writes: Could you please tell me the symptoms and name of the disease in which bones waste away in the lower back and the front? I understand the disorder is serious and would like to know more about it. Does the victim become a vegetable? What about cure and outcome?

REPLY

Osteoporosis is the most likely condition capable of causing these symptoms in a woman. Treatments include increasing the intake of calcium and the use of sex hormones. Exercise also is beneficial. Complete disability rarely occurs.

CURFEW FOR EXERCISE

D.J.S. writes: Does it make any difference at what time of day a person exercises? A physician told a friend of mine that she should not exercise after 4 p.m.

REPLY

It makes no difference but I assume her physician had a good reason for making this recommendation. Perhaps she works hard all day and is too fatigued after 4 p.m. Under the circumstances, exertion would create too much strain.

PITCH IT OUT

A reader writes: The previous tenant left some of her things, including a bottle of glycerine. For what could this be used?

REPLY

Throw it out. The substance keeps ice from forming on the windshield. Or, your druggist may be able to concoct a hand lotion.

ALBUMIN AND HEADACHE

A reader writes: Could albumin in the urine cause frequent headaches?

REPLY

Certain kidney disorders, such as Bright's disease, may cause headache. In this respect, the underlying cause, not the albumin, is responsible for the head pain.

Benet Hill Gets Citation For Safety

A certificate for meritorious activities to improve school and community safety was presented to the Benet Hill Academy recently by the National Commission on Safety Education of the National Education Association.

Certificates and plaque awards were earned by participants in the Commission's National Student Traffic Safety Program.

The program has been designed to help junior and senior high school students plan activities that will increase the safety of their schools and communities. The commission prepared and distributed materials that served to guide students in their planning and to suggest appropriate activities.

Examples of activities conducted this year included supervision of driving and parking around school, safety checks of student and faculty cars, surveys of traffic hazards and congestion, coordination of fire-exit drills, and analysis of safety factors in science laboratories, shops, and other special areas with recommendations for improvement.

Many participating schools submitted summary reports of their activities in each state, a team of educators reviewed the summary reports and made recommendations for the awarding of certificates and plaques.

ADC Command Officer Receives Honors

Headquarters Aerospace Defense Command, Ent AFB, has the distinction of having had its chief of the assignments control division named Outstanding Senior Personnel Manager of the Year, and its non-commissioned officer in charge of the flow control branch named as Outstanding Personnel Technician of the Year.

Maj. Roger A. Frey was named as the Outstanding Personnel Manager of the Year in the senior competition, while MSgt. Ronald Samuelian gained the same distinction in the personnel technician competition.

Maj. Frey faced the task of having to completely reorganize the personnel office. His enthusiastic acceptance of the new organization provided the initiative necessary to get it off the ground. Major Frey was able to carry out the reorganization with absolute minimal work disruption, yet satisfied all requirements and personnel concerned.

St. Samuelian was responsible for establishing an airman flow control section within the airman assignment division. He established the section from scratch, and superior results were obtained.

According to his recommendation for USAF Personnel Technician of the Year Award, his most significant accomplishment was a recently completed research project concerning assignment confirmations which led to his developing a new application of an old assignment policy.

This led to his proposal of a firm assignment procedure requiring five actions and eight days to consummate. This system, if implemented Air Force-wide, will save thousands of dollars in filing, key punching and time. As a result of Sergeant Samuelian's suggestion, ADC adopted the procedure for command-wide use.

Two Alleged Spies Freed by Koreans

SEOUL (AP) — Two South Koreans who were spirited out of West Germany in 1967 and convicted of spying for North Korea were released from jail Tuesday because of illness, officials announced today.

They were Lim Suk-Hoon, 34, a former student at West Berlin Engineering University, and Park Sung-Ok, 35, who had been a miner in West Germany. Lim was serving a 15-year term and Park was serving a five-year term.

Their release came three days after Paul Frank, a West German special envoy, ended a six-day mission here to gain the release of 17 Koreans who were taken from West Germany by South Korean secret service men in 1967. The Korean government claimed they were members of a spy ring operating out of East Berlin.

Bonn suspended its economic aid to South Korea, contending German sovereignty had been violated. Seoul claimed it had a right to return the Koreans because they were involved in a case affecting national security.

Some of those taken out of Germany were acquitted and allowed to return earlier and four are awaiting a supreme court review of their convictions.

Three Named To Board of Brockhurst

The Brockhurst Foundation Inc. has announced the appointment of Mrs. Phillip G. Cole, Fred C. Kooker and the Rev. Douglas H. Williams to the board of governors for three-year terms.

Re-elected to serve on the board for additional three-year terms were Judge William M. Calvert, J. Frederick Angell, Wallace Lundquist and Joseph A. Uphoff. Judge Calvert has served as president of the foundation for two years.

The board is the governing and policy-making body for the Brockhurst Boys Ranch, Green Mountain Falls, established as a non-profit, private, residential treatment center for emotionally disturbed and underprivileged boys in the fall of 1964.

At the first meeting of 1969, the board announced the establishment of a building fund. Plans have been drawn and donated by the architectural firm of Wallace and Lusk for a dormitory to be constructed as part one of a three-part phase to replace buildings currently being used to house the boys. Funds are being sought from other Foundations and private donors for this project.

Elected at the meeting as trustees for the year 1969 were: Gen. Robert M. Lee (Ret), president; Robert S. Grimes, vice president; Joseph A. Uphoff, treasurer; Elmer H. Tesker, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Morris Obodov, secretary; and J. F. Angell, Mrs. Peter J. King, Wallace Lundquist, Mrs. Raymond L. Shoemaker, Judge William M. Calvert.

Also currently serving on the Board of Governors are F. C. Barton, the Rev. J. D. Burnette, Jack Finlayson, Dow Finsterwald, Dr. R. S. Fixott, John A. Phillips, Sherwood F. Ritz and Mrs. Walter S. White.

All members are residents of the Colorado Springs area. The Foundation serves boys from all of Colorado.

Currently, 24 boys are living at Brockhurst Boys Ranch, representing the counties of Arapahoe, Alamosa, Denver, El Paso, Jefferson, Las Animas, Morgan and Pueblo.

North Viets 'Mild' About Nixon Speech

TOKYO (AP) — The North Vietnamese party paper, Nhan Dan, described President Nixon's inaugural speech as "a piece of hortatory rhetoric" today in a commentary noticeable for its mildness.

Nhan Dan's main criticism was that Nixon "did not say anything clear and definite about the question on ending the U.S. war in Vietnam." The daily said an end to the war was "the most urgent and strongest demand of the American people and the peoples all over the world."

Observers in Tokyo interpreted the commentary's mildness as a desire by Hanoi not to impair relations with the new administration until it has a chance to judge Nixon's strategy for the Vietnam war and the Paris peace talks.

Consumer Affairs Department Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, who wants the average American to be protected when he goes shopping, says he will renew his efforts to create a Cabinet-level Department of Consumer Affairs.

The New York Democrat said Wednesday he will begin next week gathering co-sponsors for a bill to create the department. He has introduced such bills in previous years—last year's had more than 60 sponsors and this year he is hoping for more than 100.

Rosenthal said he sent a long letter to President Nixon outlining his views about the need for the new department but received a noncommittal reply.

But he said he believes Congress and the nation have become more aware of the need for a consumer-protection department and this will cause the administration to be receptive to the idea.

He said he expects Nixon to abolish the office held by Miss Betty Furness. She was former President Lyndon B. Johnson's special assistant for consumer affairs, a post created by executive order. Miss Furness urged that the post be written into the law and made permanent.

Queen Victoria chose Ottawa as the capital of Canada in 1857.

MODEST JOE — Quarterback Joe Namath of the New York Jets went like this at rally in honor of the Jets at New York City Hall Wednesday. He could take the Baltimore Colts, but when Mayor John Lindsay and others heaped on the praise he went into this defensive play. (AP Wirephoto)

Namath Hints Super Exit With Good Health Intact

NEW YORK (AP)— Was the Super Bowl Joe Namath's super farewell to professional football?

The brilliant quarterback, who predicted that the New York Jets would beat the Baltimore Colts in the Super Bowl and made good his boasts, was not talking Wednesday—at least on that topic.

"I'm very happy with my life as it is right now," Namath said at a City Hall tribute to the Jets. But he also said:

"Jimmy Brown got out while he was still healthy," referring to the Cleveland Browns' star fullback who retired at the peak of his career to become a movie actor. "You want to make it while you're on top before you get destroyed."

Natham's knees, operated on several times, are a prime source of concern.

The quarterback currently has several business ventures going, including a New York night spot and string of drive-in restaurants. Namath said he has received a number of other offers—some in the show business field—since the Super Bowl and said he would evaluate the situation after returning from a USO-sponsored tour of Far East military installations. He leaves today.

At the City Hall ceremonies, attended by more than 5,000 persons, Namath paid tribute to his teammates, some 15 of whom were in attendance.

"I've been reading about everything I did," he said, "and I did play good. But if it wasn't for these fellows, where would I be? Everything's a team thing. Believe that, it's a 40-50-man thing."

Namath was asked if his statements before the Super Bowl lauding the Jets and rapping Baltimore quarterback Earl Morrall constituted premeditated psychology.

"I didn't say what I said before the game to give them (the Jets) confidence," he replied. "They had confidence because they knew they were the best. We all felt we could win the game. If I wanted to, I would have given you an answer already," he hedged.

Later, Namath was awarded a car as the most valuable player in the Super BOWL.

Today, Weeb Ewbank is expected to announce whether he will remain in the dual capacity of coach and general manager of the Jets.

Haywood - Porter Battle Won by Johnny Jones, Zone

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Guess who won the Spencer Haywood-Howard Porter battle? Johnny Jones, that's who.

A sellout crowd turned out at the Philadelphia Palestra Wednesday night to watch two of the country's most highly touted sophomores—Haywood of Detroit and Porter of Villanova—go at each other.

But when the shooting died down it turned out to be Jones and zones that told the story as Villanoava, ranked 11th in The Associated Press college basketball poll, ran away with a 93-71 victory.

Villanova led 46-45 with 15:43 left to play but the Wildcats suddenly went on a 25-5 tear over the next six minutes to wrap things up. Porter had 11 points during that stretch and Jones six.

Jones, a 6-foot-4 senior from Pompano Beach, Fla., finished with 37 points, a career high, 22 of them in the first half, as Villanova ran its record to 12-2. He also had 12 rebounds. Porter added 28 while Olympic hero Haywood, held to 12 points in the first 30 minutes, wound up with 25.

Vaillanova clamped one of Coach Jack Kraft's patented sagging zones around Haywood—"I'd like to think that our zone had something to do with stopping him," Kraft said—and the Titans were unable to penetrate it with mush success.

The only other ranked team to see action was No. 9 La Salle, which turned back upset-minded Pennsylvania 78-64 in the second half of the Palestra twin bill.

The Explorers, 13-1, made 36 of 40 free throws to score a come-from-behind victory over the Ivy Leaguers, who had stunned Villanova last week with a slowdown game.

La Salle ran off 15 straight points in the second half to seal the triumph. Larry Cannon took scoring honors with 21 points, 18 in the second half.

There was only a smattering of major games elsewhere across the nation.

Calvin Murphy of Niagara, the nation's second leading scorer ,was held to 22 points, his season's low, but the Purple Eagles got by Buffalo 79-76. Murphy's three free throws, one thanks to a technical foul against Buffalo Coach Len Serfustini—put Niagara ahead to stay 69-68.

Gary Brown's free throw with six seconds left enabled Westminster of Pennsylvania to edge Pitt 65-64. Terry Driscoll's 28 points and 18 rebounds paced Boston College over Seton Hall 84-56 in the Eagles' first game since Coach Bob Cousy announced he would retire at season's end.

Bowling Green trailed Toledo until the final two minutes when Dan McLemore's round basket and two foul shots by Dick Rudgers gave the Falcons a 64-63 Mid-American Conference victory.

In another Mid-American clash, Western Michigan piled up an 11-point lead and then held off league-leading Miami of Ohio 71-66. Toke Coleman and Bobby Washington scored 21 points apiece as Eastern Kentucky downed Virginia Tech 73-65.

CHL Action Pits Danes, Terrors

Action gets under way tonight in the City Hockey League when Fountain Valley meets Palmer at the World Arena at 8:15 p. m.

The Danes, currently in fourth place in the CHL with a 4-3 record, have only played one game in the last five weeks. The defense-minded Terrors sport a 2-7 record.

In YAL games preceding the main contest: Monarches vs. Aces and Huskies vs. Pups.

Joe Dey Named Czar

NEW YORK (AP) — Joseph C. Dey Jr., the most influential golf figure in the United States, is leaving his long-time job as executive director of the U.S. Golf Association to become commissioner of the rich pro tour.

The exact date of Dey's switch has not been determined, but may be announced when the USGA holds it annual meeting here this weekend.

In announcing Dey's appointment Wednesday, J. Paul Austin of Atlanta, chairman of the newly constituted Tournament Policy Board, said Dey would have complete control of everything pertaining to the pro tour.

However, actual conduct of the tour will continue under the direcion of the field staff, headed by Jack Tuthill.

The 60-year-old Dey agreed to terms for five years. He will have offices here and at PGA headquarters in Palm Bach Gardens, Fla. He has been executive director of the USGA since 1934.

Dey was a unanimous selection by the Tournament Policy Board, which came into being last month following an agreement between the rebellious tournament players and the PGA.

In his USGA post, Dey headed the organization which lays down the code of playing rules in the U.S. for the pro as well as the weekend hacker.

He is internationally known in the golf world and has worked closely with the Royal & Ancient Club of St. Andrews, Scotland, in coordinating the rules of golf which prevail throughout the world. In addition, he has been secretary of the World Amateur Golf Council.

Dey is a frustrated minister and several times has been on the verge of dedicating himself to the pulpit. But each time he remained to preach integrity and fair play in golf.

"I discovered that the ministry can be practiced in many ways," he once said. "A writer molding words into a message, a painter transferring his heart to a canvas, a musician composing a beautiful hymn or even a golf official trying to protect the standards of the game."

Under Dey's reign, no sport has been better administrated or freer from the taint of scandal.

Wallace 2nd in League After Big Point Week

By MIKE MONROE
Gazette Telegraph
Sports Writer

Joe Wallace is not the leading scorer in the South Central League. If he has any more weeks like last week, though, it won't be long before he leaves the rest of the pack behind.

Wallace scored 59 points in Palmer's two hardcourt battles last weekend. The output brought him from nowhere in the top fifteen in league scoring to within one point of first place. He trails Pueblo Central's Paul Ball by only one point with 78 league points. Ball has 79 for an average of 19.8, best in the league. Wallace's average is 19.5.

Curiously enough, Wallace contributed greatly to Ball's one point advantage in the scoring race. In Palmer's match-up with Central last Friday Ball connected on one technical foul shot. Wallace committed the technical.

Last week's top scorer list underwent a considerable shakeup. Pueblo Centennial's Bill Wilkerson, last week's top scorer, dropped all the way to third behind Ball and Wallace. John Smith of Centennial, second last week, slipped even further. He lists at seventh in the current rankings.

Palmer's Al Mullins, third last week, fell even more than Smith. He dropped to tenth.

The only member of last week's top five besides Wilkerson to remain in the top five was Wasson's Rick Gossage. The T-Bird junior saw his average slip slightly to 17.8 from 18.0, but held onto the fourth spot.

Jumping into the top five for the first time was Cullen Bryant. Bryant's weekend fell only slightly short of Wallace. He hit for 45 weekend points to give himself a 17.5 point average and fifth place in scoring.

The only other Colorado Springs player in the top 15 is Mitchell's Steve Conrad. Conrad dropped two spots to 12th with a 14.0 point average.

Season statistics for the three Colorado Springs entries in the league show Gossage maintaining a slight scoring lead over Bryant. Gossage's season output is 146 points for an average of 18.3 points per game. Bryant is one point behind with 145 points for an 18.1 point average.

Wallace jumped into the city scoring title picture with his big weekend. His season total stands at 143 for an average of 17.9.

Palmer still leads city teams in scoring with 546 points for an average of 68.3 team points per game. Mitchell is not far behind with 529 points per contest for an average of 66.1.

Wasson still brings up the rear with 490 points and a 61.3 points per game average.

Palmer's Al Mullins managed to hold his lead in rebounding among the city schools. He has 75 in the Terrors' 8 games. Second in the carom-grabbing department is Bryant with 74, followed by Gossage with 72.

Palmer also leads team totals in rebounding. Tribesmen have grabbed 310 loose shots for an average of 38.7 per game. Three Mitchell players have accounted for 205 of their team's total of 287. Conrad and Jim Waters have snared 70 and 61, respectively to go with Bryant's 74.

Despite its lead in team scoring, Palmer continues to convert free throws at a slower rate than its two Colorado Springs counterparts. The Terrors have a percentage of 47.0 at the line, while Mitchell sports a 50.7 percentage and Wasson a city-leading 57.6.

Mitchell became the first of the three schools to break into 40 per cent bracket in field goal percentage. Coach Bill Wright's Marauders have found the range on 40.7 per cent of their shots from the floor.

Palmer almost made the 40 per cent club, but missed by one percentage point at 39.0. Wasson has a 37.7 percentage.

Venable Moves Up In Big 8 Scoring

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jerry Venable, who started scoring points for Kansas State when the Big Eight basketball race opened, has moved into second place in the individual scoring derby.

Averaging only 13.2 points in the Wildcats' first 11 games—of which K-State won only four—Venable has hit for a 20.2 average in Kansas State's first five Big Eight games to move into second behind Cliff Meely of Colorado.

Meely has not played since last week's statistical report, and retains his conference scoring lead at 23.5 and is averaging 12 rebounds over four games.

Venable, who has collected 47 field goals to lead the conference in making baskets, moved past Iowa State's Bill Cain, who slipped slightly but still is averaging 20 points for six games.

Kansas' Dave Robisch advanced from eighth place to fourth with his 28-point outburst last Saturday against Kansas State. Robisch now is averaging 18.6 points.

Then come Amos Thomas of Oklahoma State at 17.7, Don Tomlinson of Missouri at 17.3, Gordon Tope of Colorado at 16.8, Aaron Jenkins of Iowa State at 16, Garfield Heard of Oklahoma at 15.3 and Tom Scantlebury of Nebraska at 15.

Cain is second to Meely in rebounding with an 11.5 average and Gene Williams of K-State is third at 10.2.

Joe Smith of Oklahoma State replaced Kansas State's Jeff Webb as the top shooter. Smith hit 4-of-8 against Iowa State Monday to give him a 16-of-26 mark for the season, 61.5 per cent.

However, Smith missed two free throws and surrendered the free throw shooting lead to Tope, who has hit 23-of-26 for 88.5 per cent.

Pirates Lead WRL Statistics

By CURT REIMER
Gazette Telegraph
Sports Writer

Coach John Berleffi's St. Mary's basketball club sports the most productive offensive unit in the Will Rogers League. The Pirates also own the best overall record with a 10-1 mark for the year.

St. Mary's is averaging just over 65 points a game for the season. Widefield is right behind the Pirates with a 63.4 average. The Glads' are second in season's records, with an 8-3 mark to date.

Despite both clubs top marks in these two catagories, it is the cellar dwelling Air Academy Kadets that boast the top scorer. Frank Amelio leads all scorers in the WRL with an even 19 point per game average. The Kadets have compiled an 0-9 record for the year.

St. Mary's defense shows the lowest total to date, as the Pirates have given up an average of 55.6 points per game in their 11 contests.

St. Mary's and Widefield are currently tied for the Will Rogers League lead with identical 3-0 loop marks.

The Pirates' Ted Peralta and Harrison's Joe DuBray are tied for second in scoring with 17.7 marks. Peralta has more points, however, as he has played in one more game than DuBray.

Gary Speaks of Canon City follows in third place in scoring with a 16.9 average. The Tigers own an even 5-5 record to date and are 1-2 in league play.

Widefield's Terry Vermillion enters the scoring picture in fourth place with a 16 point average. Harrison's Larry Caldwell follows in the fifth spot with a 15.5 mark.

Although the Panthers have two of the league's top five scorers, they still have managed only a 1-9 record for the year. Harrison's only win was a narrow victory over lowly Air Academy.

Harrison is the only team in the league to boast three players in double figures. Terry Parrish is the Panthers third most productive shooter with an 11.5 average.

This week's WRL cage action should see a single team emerge as the league leader. St. Mary's and Widefield match their perfect records in a Friday night showdown in the Pirates gym.

The same night Harrison travels to Cheyenne Mountain and Canon City comes north for a contest with Air Academy.

The following night St. Mary's tackles Harrison at the Panthers gym and Widefield takes on Air Academy. Cheyenne and Canon City battle on Saturday also, as the first round of WRL action comes to a close.

Oakland's Streak Rudely Stopped at 16 by LA Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Oakland Oaks, who waited so long for Rick Barry to join them, did perfectly well without him until George Stane ruined them with a last second perfect shot.

Stone's 22-foot jumper brought the Los Angeles Stars a 123-121 victory over the Oaks at Los Angeles Wednesday night, ending their 16-game winning streak.

The Oaks, galloping off with the Western Division of the American Basketball Association, were 25-4 when Barry suffered a knee injury Dec. 27.

But without Barry, who had to sit out a year before joining Oakland, the Oaks compiled a 10-0 mark until Stone took a pass with three seconds left while his coach, Bill Sharman, pleaded for a time out, and dropped in the winner. He finished with 31 point .

Oakland had tied the score on baskets by Larry Brown and Doug Moe, the last with four seconds remaining.

Denver thus cut Oakland's lead to 10 games with a 124-103 victory over the New York Nets at home.

In other games, Kentucky and Indiana remained deadlocked for second place in the East, 3½ games behind idle Minnesota, as the visiting Colonels nudged Dallas 104-102 and the Pacers routed Miami 140-117 at Indianapolis. New Orleans stopped Houston 121-117 at Houston in the other game.

In the National Basketball Association, Detroit edged the Los Angeles Lakers 116-115, Seattle surprised Baltimore 98-94, Atlanta bombed Phoenix 125-107, Chicago upset Boston 95-94 and Philadelphia outlasted the New York Knicks 140-137 in two overtimes.

Larry Jones hit all but two of his season high 40 points in the first three periods when Denver took a decisive lead.

Louie Dampier's three-point basket with 13 seconds left carried Kentucky to victory. Teammate Gene Moore had 24 points, but John Beasley of Dallas, had 34.

Indiana scored 45 points in the second period for a 73-47 halftime lead that settled its triumph. The Pacers got 24 upoints each from Mel Daniels and Jay Miller.

Late free throws by James Jones, who totaled 26 points, offset a 43-point performance by Willie Somerset and lifted New Orleans past Houston.

Barbara Jo to Make Her Debut as Jockey Saturday

MIAMI (AP) — Pretty, dark-haired Barbara Jo Rubin of Miami expects to make her debut as a jockey Saturday at Hobby Horse Hall near Nassau, in the Bahamas.

The 19-year-old Miss Rubin, licensed as a jockey in Florida last week, was unable to ride at Tropical Park Jan. 16 when male jockeys refused to compete against her.

As a result of their action, jockeys Calvin Stone and Terry Bove drew fines of $100 each and cases against them and 11 others were referred to the State Racing Commission.

The others are Robert Wholey Jr., Jorge Velasquez, Oswaldo Torres, Consolate Errico, Raywood Broussard, Heliodoro Gustines, Jacinto Vasquez, Michael Miceil, Heriberto Arroro, Craig Perret and Roberto Gonzalez.

Trainer Bryan Webb, who has Miss Rubin's contract, said she will fly to Nassau Friday and will gallop horses during training hours Saturday.

Races at Hobby Horse Hall are run clockwise, the opposite to those in the United States, and Miss Rubin wants to become accustomed to the direction. She rides at 109 pounds.

She is scheduled to ride in the third and fifth races and will become the first of the recent U.S. crop of females to compete against males.

Denny McLain Voted AP Male Athlete of Year

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Denny McLain, the flamboyant Detroit pitcher who is equally at home standing on a mound or sitting at an organ, was named today Male Athlete of the Year in the 38th annual Associated Press poll.

Continuing recent domination by baseball players of the year-end award, McLain became the fourth in succession and the seventh in the last eight polls to find himself sitting on top of the sports world.

In those eight years only Don Schollander, the swimming star of America's 1964 Olympic team, has managed to break baseball's hold on the award.

But no Olympian from the 1968 U.S. team or such an outstanding college football player as O.J. Simpson, the Heisman Trophy winner from Southern California, was able to overshadow McLain's exploits both on and off the field during the 1968 season.

For the 24-year-old right-hander conducted a delicate balancing act during the entire season, pitching baseballs with one hand and playing the organ with two. He received acclaim for the former, notoriety for the latter and money for both.

And, when the season had ended, McLain had posted 31 victories—becoming the first pitcher to reach the 30-victory plateau since Dizzy Dean in 1934—and was on his way to a Las Vegas opening dress in mink.

In the balloting by sports writers and broadcasters, McLain was rewarded with 108 first-place votes and amassed a total of 517 points on the basis of three points for first place, two for second and one for third.

Only three other athletes received more than 200 points—Simpson, pitcher Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals and quarterback Earl Morrall of the Baltimore Colts, the only pro football player able to crack the Top Ten.

The poll, however, was taken before the Super Bowl game, which will become a part of the 1969 voting, and therefore does not reflect the stunning upset pulled off by quarterback Joe Namath in leading the New York Jets to a 16-7 victory over the Colts.

Simpson, the workhorse running back who almost certainly will be selected by the Buffalo Bills as the No. 1 pick in next week's pro football draft, was the runner-up in the voting with 64 first and 423 points.

Gibson, despite beating McLain in two World Series confrontations, finished a distant third with 57 firsts and 302 points. Morrall, who led the Colts to the National Football League championship in place of injured Johnny Unitas, received 39 first and 240 points.

Rounding out the Top Ten were discus thrower Al Oerter, 180 points; long jumper Bob Beamon, 111; skier Jean Claude Killy, 64, and golfer Billy Casper, 49.

Namath, who led the Jets to the American Football League championship, received four first-place votes and 29 points.

Baseball's domination of the poll began in 1961 with Roger Maris. Maury Wills and Sandy Koufax then made it three in a row for the sport before Schollander broke the hold. Frank Robinson, Carl Yastrzemski and McLain now have made baseball the first sport to ever have four consecutive winners.

Forecast Winds, Rain for Crosby Golf Tournament

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

PEEBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Think Sun read the big sign at the Bing Crosby Golf Tournament.

A bulky field of 137 pros and an equal number of amateurs began four days of play over three courses with the weatherman saying it would be cloudy with rain likely in the afternoon, southerly winds 20-25 miles per hour and temperatures in the 50s. No rain was forecast for Friday.

This picturesque Monterey Peninsula has been drenched with rain the past several days leaving the Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill courses heavy and probably unmowable.

Defending champion Johnny Pott of Gulf Hills, Miss., sees the wind off the Pacific Ocean providing a greater hazard than the wetness.

After shooting two-under par 70 during Wednesday's practice round at Pebble Beach, Pott commented, "The course played longer but there was no wind blowing. You won't find windless conditions everyday of this tournament."

Pott not only won the individual pro title last year but also teamed with New York financier Virgil Sherrill, a World War II flying ace, to capture the pro-amateur crown.

Pott carded a 73, incidentally, on his final round at Pebble last year for his 285 total, three-under-par for the 72-hole distance.

Crosby's tournament, dubbed a clambake back when a much smaller group combined golf with social activities, officially is know as the national pro-amateur.

Of the $150,000 total purse, $125,000 is divided among the leading pros with $25,000 going to the pros on the top pro-amateur teams, and they figure in the amateur's handicap in counting the bast-ball scores.

Celebrities from fields of entertainment, business, sports and the professions are numbered among the players.

Don Cherry has Dean Martin as a partner, Bert Yancey plays with Andy Williams, Bob Rosburg with John Brodie, Ken Still with Don Drysdale, and Dave Stockton with Leonard Firestone.

Each team plays each of the three courses during the first three days before the field is cut for Sunday's final round at Pebble Beach.

Jack Nicklaus plays his first tournament of 1969 at the Crosby and quipped that maybe his luck would be better at Las Vegas. The fourth Nicklaus youngster, Gary Thomas, was born last Wednesday weighing seven pounds, 11 ounces, and 7-11 are winning numbers in Nevada.

Big Jack didn't keep score for his round at Pebble Beach but said, "The course was in much better shape than I had expected."

Not happy with slow starts in 1967 and 1968, Nickalus said he plans to enter more tournaments prior to the Masters this time around.

Nicklaus won the Crosby in 1967 but then went into a slump.

Missing from the entry list were Julius Boros, the PGA champion of last season, and Charlie Sifford, the leading money winner so far this young year.

Boros hasn't been playing this early in the year and Sifford fell victim to the flu after winning the Los Angeles Open two weeks ago.

Because of the sogginess, the Professional Golfers' Association made special rules for the first three rounds.

On all three courses the fairways were defined on par 4 and 5 holes where in special areas the golfers are allowed to pick up and clean the ball.

If conditions improve by Sunday, the regular rules could be ineffect for the 18-hole finals, By that time, hopefully, even the water in the trap at Pebble's 18th will have evaporated.

Baseball Players to Huddle On Pension Strike Issues

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball players will hold a special meeting in New York Monday, Feb. 3, to decide whether to carry out a threatened strike for higher pension benefits.

The players voted 461 to 6 last week to reject the club owners' offer to increase contributions to the pension fund by $1 million for a total of $5.1 million.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, announced Wednesday the situation had reached an impasse and that several players from each club will attend the Feb. 3 meeting to determine a course of action.

Many top stars, including Willie Mays, Mickey Mantle, Bob Gibson and Carl Yastrzemski, have endorsed the Association's policy of not signing 1969 contracts until a satisfactory benefit plan is worked out.

Spring training is scheduled to begin next month and indications are that unsigned players will not report unless a pension agreement is reached.

In a prepared statement, Miller charged the owners with mounting a national campaign to undermine the Players' Association. He said, "If ever there was an industry hell bent on its own destruction it is, unfortunately, that of the 'great national pastime.'"

Blues Seek Czech Icer

BRNO, Cezchoslovakia (AP) — Cliff Fletcher of the St. Louis club in the National Hockey League, has been negotiating with the Brno club for the transfer of Jaroslav Jirik, it was reported Wednesday.

Czech club officials said no definite agreement was reached so far, but that Jirik, a left wing on the Czech national team, probably will be allowed to go to St. Louis.

Stan Musial and Roy Campanella: what more fitting players to be enshrined in baseball's Hall of Fame.

Musial, the Man from St. Louis, the guy who is a record-setter. Campanella, whose ten-years in a wheelchair was no factor in pulling votes from a sympathetic press.

Stan Musial will be billed in future years as one of the all-time great outfielders when writers don their "All-Time Great Baseball Team Column Writing Hats". Certainly he is among the top five all-time great hitters.

Campanella was the Dodgers' best catcher, possibly of all time. When he was injured in an auto accident in 1958, it ended one of the finest careers a catcher could have. He still might be playing and making the All-Star Game his annual abode.

They join a select group, but it was all but a foregone concludsion they would make it this year, Musial's first on the ballot.

Halls Abound

Halls of fame spring up almost everywhere these days. Many states have their own Hall of Fame to honor athletes who have contributed to their state or who have carried the name of their state into national prominence.

Colorado has had one for five years. It contains such immortals as Jack Dempsey, Whizzer White and Dutch Clark. There are many more to choose from, although the glitter surrounding these latter names is not as bright as some of the early inductees.

This state has not been blessed with as many nationally-known athletes as others, but it does have a considerable share considering a smaller population. And many athletes have acquired skill and a smaller but important reputation in a single sport.

Often, however, halls of fame tend to push some people into them that really don't deserve the honor. Reasons for such actions are plentiful, but one basic reason is that there aren't enough people in the field to give the particular hall enough annual publicity.

When this happens, the hall is cheapened and any late-comer worthy of induction may feel it isn't worth his while to belong.

Players, Hall Complement

Nothing like this will happen to the Baseball Hall of Fame. At least, it won't as long as the sport continues to produce representative players.

Every year brings along one bright star, a solid player destined, as they say, for greatness. And retired players will get their chance each year as they always have.

Great players, a great sport, a great hall of fame. Stan Musial and Roy Campanella are honored by their induction, but the Hall of Fame can be honored they are now a part of it.

It Only Took Two Minutes In the Ring for Foster

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Light heavyweight champion Bob Foster said it wasn't his easiest fight. But his first-round technical knockout of outmatched Frankie De Paula in a title defense at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night has to rate high up on any fighter's soft touch list.

It took the stork-legged, 6-foot-3½ champ from Washington, D.C., just 2 minutes, 17 seconds to drop the 5-8½ challenger from Jersey City, N.J., on the canvas three times. Under New York's three knockdowns in one round rule, the fight was automatically over for the 5-1 underdog.

In that brief period of time, Foster, who once fought for $23 and quit the ring in disgust when he couldn't get any fights, earned about $75,000 from the gross gate of $189,129 contributed by 16,129 fans and the television.

Most of the fans came from New Jersey to root for the crude but hard-hitting night club bouncer. Frankie at least earned about $37,500 to make up for his ruffled feelings.

Foster, winner of 13 straight including 12 knockouts, and his manager, Mushky Salow, plan today to go over a stack of offers for title defenses.

Salow said he had offers totalling more than $300,000 for defenses against Gregorio Peralta in Argentina; Peiro Del Papa in Italy; Bob Dunlap in Australia; Yvan Preberg in Yugoslavia, and Jose Torres in Puerto Rico.

"First, they've got to put the money in the bank in the United States," said Salow.

The Garden offered a shot at the winner of the heavyweight fight here Feb. 3 between George Chuvalo and Buster Mathis, but Salow said "we'll take Joe Frazier or Jimmy Ellis with pleasure."

Frazier, of Philadelphia, and Ellis, of Louisville, both hold a piece of the disputed heavyweight title.

De Paula gave the partisan crowd one brief monent of hope early in the first round when he had the champ on the deck. Foster went down from a left to the body but it looked more like a slip since the blow had little steam behind it.

But referee Johnny LoBianco gave the 30-year-old champ the mandatory eight-count.

I told the referee that it was a slip and I got mad," said Foster.

Just a few seconds later Frankie went down for the first time. Foster said he set up his foe with a jab and a right uppercut ("my best punch") and dropped him with a hook and a right.

"After that, I knew I had him," said Foster.

The next two knockdowns quickly followed, the second from a hook and right to the head and third from a right to the head.

"I really didn't hit him with my best punches," said Foster. "I wasn't warmed up yet."

"I wasn't hurt," said De Paula. "My feet went out from under me. A couple of punches stunned me but it was my feet—they just went out from under me.

"They shouldn't have the three-knockdowns rule for title fights. I wasn't hurt."

Czechs, Spain Threaten Goodyear

MACON, Ga. (AP) — Challenges by Czechoslovakia and Spain seem likely to provide the greatest threat to Goodyear Akron's two-year domination of the international World Cup basketball championships when play begins here Friday.

The Goodyear squad, hobbled by the loss of three Olympic players, will be striving to defend the world titles it first won at Rome in 1967 and successfully defended in Philadelphia last year.

Entries for the three-day tournament are Goodyear, the host team from Macon, Spartak of Czechoslovakia, Real Madrid of Spain and Sirios of Brazil. All the teams arrived Wednesday.

Friday's opening game pits the Macon Movers against a Brazilian squad led by three Olympic players—Luiz Claudio Menon, Antonio Succar and Carlos Domingos Massoni.

Czechoslovakia and Spain, the defending European champion, clash in Saturday night's first game while Akron opens play against the winner of the Macon-Brazil contest later Saturday night.

A consolation game is scheduled Sunday afternoon with the championship set later that afternoon.

Real Madrid, which defeated the Czech squad in last year's European championship, features three American players. They are Miles Aiken of St. Bonaventure, Wayne Braebender of Minnesota and Cliff Luyk of Florida.

The Czechs are led by two high scoring performers, Frantisek Konvicka and Jan Bobrovsky.

Goodyear has added Mike Stewart of Memphis State and Mickey Wittman of Miami, Fla., to its line-up in an effort to offset the loss of Olympians Cal Fowler, Jim King and Tom Black.

Macon's squad includes several former University of Georgia players.

SNOW LIMITS GRAZING

Snow-covered ranges in the western and San Luis Valley districts put winter feeding into full swing by Jan. 1, according to the Colorado crop and livestock reporting service.

Ranges remained open in the eastern districts with moderate supplemental feeding taking place. Most ranges remained relatively dry, despite light snowstorms over most of the state during December.

Cattle and sheep remained in good flesh and adequate feed supplies indicate they should hold good condition given a normal winter.

Let Peace Begin With Me

Double Standard

Editor's note: Please see Candidate for the Ministry Jerry Kvasnicka's letter, "Out of Context" in today's Open Parliament columns.

Most of Mr. Kvasnicka's charges, which are curiously similar to those voiced by the leaders of the rally 'round the college flagpole Monday, were answered by Reporter Ray Herst who covered the rally and reported on it in his bylined article "Students Castigate GT; Reporter Gives Reply" in Tuesday's edition. Herst showed, citing comparative lineage, and contrary to the accusations leveled, that, rather than zeroing in on any particular speaker or facet of the symposium to the neglect of others, the GT had seven different and independently thinking reporters assigned to the symposium who covered the various speakers and phases of the event and reported what THEY saw and heard.

We rather suspect that the ire directed at Herst was generated by the fact that he saw the howling contradiction between words and actions and exposed that contradiction in his column Saturday with these succinct words: "Schechner, the advocate of do your own thing and to hell with the rest of the world, finked out. He joined the establishment. He made his own rules. He forced them. He used violence. He made the world conform to his thinking. He blew it, baby."

But, all that and more is a matter of record and we see no purpose in repeating more of it here. A few additional remarks, however, do appear appropriate.

Mr. Kvasnicka appears incapable of differentiating between an act (murder or rape for instance) committed and the second act, occasioned by the first, of reporting the fact that the act had been committed. It is almost as if he would attach equal guilt to both the murderer and to the person who merely points and says, "Look, murder has been done!"

Then, too, since Mr. Kvasnicka introduces the question of motivations, and assuming the symposium, from start to finish, was all above board with nothing to hide or be ashamed of, perhaps it is pertinent to ask: 1) Why were photographers barred from the final event?; and, 2), Why was the play Friday night performed in the raw after Dr. Lloyd Worner, CC President, was assured that would not be the case?

And if we may assume that Mr. Kvasnicka, like "professor" Schechner, is an advocate of "doing your own thing," an admirable point of view if consistently followed in a voluntary environment, we find evidence of a curious double standard in his snide remarks with reference to the two young ladies who objected to the performance and in his objection to our coverage of the symposium.

Has it, perhaps, occurred to Mr. Kvasnicka that the two young ladies, in expressing outrage at the psychic violence of the gutter language and unexpected shock of the sight of nude bodies cavorting in a mixed crowd, were doing "their thing?" or that the Gazette Telegraph, in reporting on the symposium as we saw it, and thus discharging our responsibility to our readers, were doing "our thing?"

That double standard was again in evidence Saturday morning when this writer was harangued for over an hour over the telephone by a group, purporting to be from the college, working in relays. One individual, after properly condemning the military draft for its coercion and violence, almost in the same breath subjected this writer to an almost inarticulate outburst which included essentially the following: "If the &?!!$*&?! (the symbols represent a foul expression containing the word Mother) people of your generation don't get with it and start agreeing with us, we, who are in the majority, are going to walk right over you and trample you into the dirt."

The saddest aspect of the outburst, perhaps, was in the fact that the youngster appeared to be totally unaware that, in condemning violence on the one hand while threatening it on the other, he was blanking out reason and indulging in a contradiction of terms.

That same sort of authoritarian thinking is again in evidence in Mr. Kvasnicka's final paragraph today when he states: "I feel very sorry for the people in the community who have decided to withhold money from the College . . . These are the people in our society who are to be most pitied." The implication is that the people who object to some aspects of the symposium and, thus, take exception to Mr. Kvasnicka's own point of view, are somehow incapable of deciding how their own money should best be spent. That, precisely, is the attitude of the people who impose taxes and the slavery of the draft upon OTHER people. They, to paraphrase Mr. Kvasnicka, substitute their own arbitrarily arrived at values, ideas and decisions for the free exchange of both ideas and services.

If there is to be a "free exchange of ideas" as Mr. Kvasnicka urges, those who disagree with him must be free to express their ideas as they choose and to support their beliefs with their own assets.

Hatlo's They'll Do It Every Time

The Local Scene

Be Ready to Welcome Them

BY RUFUS L. PORTER

Floyd Gonyea, Public Relations man for Goodwill Industries, called the other night to remind me that on Saturday, Feb. 1, 7,000 Boy Scouts will distribute 50,000 bags to homes in the Springs metropolitan area. The bags will be picked up filled they hope, the following Saturday, Feb. 8, and delivered to 35 collection points, school grounds and other available spaces. Trucks will pick up the bags at the collection points and haul them to the Goodwill plant on the West Side.

This sounds like a big job, and it is, especially if all those bags are filled with clothing. Last year 37,000 filled bags were delivered to the plant. '66 was an even better year, the number being 50,000. The people of the Pikes Peak Region should be thankful for the Boy Scouts' part in this and the parents of the scouts should be justly proud that their sons are taking part in such a drive. The Scouts are all volunteers and the bags are filled voluntarily by those who have cast off clothing they no longer need or want. It is a voluntary drive all the way and the results are most gratifying.

But if you think the drive itself is a big undertaking, you should see them in the plant after delivery. They make a mighty big pile and that pile has to be sorted into many smaller, but yet very big piles, and these piles have to be sorted again to see which clothes need mending, which don't need it and what belongs in the rag heap. Rags are cleaned and baled and sold by the pound. Nothing is wasted, even buttons are saved.

And here is one of the chief benefits of the drive: If enough used clothing can be gathered in this drive, it will mean the plant will operate all through the winter without any lay-offs as might be the case if the drive isn't productive enough. This would mean that some of the handicapped persons who are "learners," those who are capable of being trained to take their place in the outside world, to compete for jobs with the unhandicapped, and the others who are unemployable except at the Goodwill plant, would have to be laid off until things got better.

Of course, they might be able to get on welfare, but that is what they and Goodwill are trying to avoid. The people of the Pikes Peak Region have always been good supporters of Goodwill, so I don't think we need worry too much about a lay-off.

So far, so good. Goodwill Industries trains handicapped people to earn a living and this makes those people very happy. Many employers co-operate in hiring handicapped persons for work they are capable of doing. This is good for those so trained, it is good for the community as a whole, and it is good to the taxpayers' pockets.

But that isn't the end of the good being performed by Goodwill. All the used clothing that is still servicable is cleaned, mended if needed, and placed on sale in one or the other of Goodwill's retail stores. These goods are sold at very reasonable prices to folks who need them, who can't afford to buy new clothes, but still want to look respectable—they can in Goodwill clothing. Much of the clothing on display in their stores is new looking and of very good quality. I believe this end of the Goodwill industry is probably the best because it helps so many folks keep decent looking clothes on their backs and keeps their children from feeling ashamed in the schools. No one would ever guess, but the donor, that the clothing came from Goodwill.

We all have gobs of clothing, hanging in half-a-dozen closets, that we will never use again. It is amazing how much one can accumulate before he ever thinks of getting rid of some of it. The Boy Scout drive makes it easy to clean out your closets, to rid them of unwanted items and make room for something new.

If you can't fill their bag, put in what you have to spare. Clothing, shoes, bed clothing and other household items. Bigger things, such as refrigerators, washers and driers, sewing machines, etc., give them a ring and a Goodwill truck will come and pick it up. Last Spring they came all the way to Cascade to pick up our old, but still good, refrigerator, and the men helped us move in the new one.

Greet the Boy Scouts with a smile when they stop at your place Feb. 1. And, if possible, with a full bag when they return Feb. 8. You couldn't put your old clothes to better use.

Down the Road to Reason

BY D. R. SEGAL
Editor, Brownsville (Tex.) Herald

The crew of the PUEBLO is safely home as the result of what must be the silliest piece of diplomacy in history. The United States' representative signed a document in which we admitted poaching, at the same time announcing that the confession was false and mendacious. This, obviously, satisfied the North Koreans, and the crewmen of the PUEBLO, and their families, could have cared less.

There is reported to be "propaganda value" in the confession, but the McLuhanism of this escapes me. Certainly the large segment of mankind living outside the confines of the Iron Curtain—and a great portion inside it — don't believe much of anything in the way of political popaganda, especially that coming from Red China, Russia and Washington. One might conclude that after reading the confession and disclaimer the world's literates will be decidedly ho-hum about the whole thing, figuring there is no excess of purity on either side.

The credibility gap, which is the supreme achievement of the Johnson administration, might in the long view serve us well. It has created an incredibility about virtually every word and sign from any government, and that is not insalubrious. When men quit believing that politicians are immaculately conceived and divinely inspired, we will be pointed down the road to reality.

Reason and logic cannot be applied to affairs like the PUEBLO incident. It is entirely possible the PUEBLO was inside the territorial waters of North Korea, either physically or electronically. The vessel is known as a "spyship," and if a spy ship does not conduct clandestine intelligence operations she is goofing off. The PUEBLO seems to be a marine version of the U-2 incident which embarrased the Eisenhower administration, but not much. Presumably, we must, with a straight face, maintain that a spy ship does not spy at all, and when one is caught we may sign a paper saying we are guilty if we tell everybody the confession is a lie. Try conjugating that one.

I have often wondered about this mythical jerk who is affected by propaganda. Governments are fussily preoccupied with this character, always worrying about how he'll take this or that lie. I should say that anyone who, at this stage, believes much of anything said by any government is a blithering idiot, confined to a place for certified loonies. I don't know how many of this sort exist in the world, but surely not enough to worry any government. I don't see why governments must play to this particular audience. "Hey, Sam, how will the people in the State Asylum react to this?" "I don't know, Irving, but they say the folks at Happy Valley Retreat won't buy it."

Diplomacy geared to the reaction of zanies and nincompoops! Some audience.—American Way Features

Seven Old Men Rule the Economy

BY OSCAR W. COOLEY
Assoc. Prof. of Economics, Ohio Northern Univ.

It is now obvious that the 10 percent surtax which was added to everybody's income tax last July did not accomplish its object, which was to curb inflation. The Consumers Price Index, our generally accepted indicator, continued to rise throughout 1968 and at year's end was nearly five percent higher than at the end of 1967. Five percent per year inflation is no longer "creeping." It is up and walking at a smart pace.

Thus, "fiscal policy," so much touted by the Keynesians, failed. Why? According to Milton Friedman, it failed because thwarted by "monetary policy," exercised by the Federal Reserve System.

For more than four months after the surtax went into effect, the "Fed" followed a policy of "easy money," on the theory that the tax increase, if not cushioned, might hit so hard as to cause a recession. The Fed increased bank reserves, encouraging lending and expansion of the money supply. This fanned the fires of inflation.

Meanwhile, the surtax took considerable spending money away from people and corporations but not enough to offset the new money the Fed was generating. And what became of the extra tax revenue? It poured into the Treasury, which poured it out again in government expenditures, plus many billions more of newly borrowed money. Even if the private sector is compelled by higher taxes to reduce spending, there is no net reduction of spending if the government increases its spending by as much or more than the private sector reduces.

Before the surtax was enacted, Friedman warned against it, urging that the guns of monetary, not fiscal, policy be trained against inflation. He has been proven 100 percent right. Harley L. Lutz, professor emeritus of public finance at Princeton, is another who has warned that "taxation alone cannot cope with inflation."

Inflation is a cancerous disease of money. When money proliferates, like cancerous cells of the body each unit of it loses value, until the whole becomes diseased and valueless. Lutz warns that we must keep money from becoming "excessive in relation to the supply needed to effect the exchange of produced goods and services at a given price level."

What causes money to proliferate?

Our modern money is created by the commercial banks when they make loans and investments. The loan is made in the form of deposit credit, against which the borrow draws checks. The recipients of the checks redeposit them and draw more checks against these deposits. Thus, the money never actually leaves the banking system, but title to it passes from one depositor to another, and thus payments are made.

The amount of loans a bank can make, and therefore the amount of "checkbook money" it can create is limited by its reserves. The amount of reserves of the banking system is controlled by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve. They have ways of increasing and decreasing the total reserves of the banking system.

It does not matter who borrows from a bank, whether it is a consumer, a business firm, or a government body, the effect is to create new money. Even if the loan were withdrawn in the form of paper money and coins, it would still add to the money supply, for the latter includes paper money and coins in circulation but not in bank vaults.

Some say government borrowing from the banks is the cause of inflation. But private borrowing has exactly the same effect as government borrowing, namely, to increase the money supply. Neither government nor private person can borrow unless the bank has reserves sufficient, under Federal Reserve rules, to allow it to make the loan. And every bank, seeking to maximize its profits, is moved to loan or invest as much as its reserves will allow at all times. SO IT IS THE "FED" WHICH ACTUALLY CONTROLS THE PROLIFERATION OF MONEY, THROUGH ITS CONTROL OF BANK RESERVES. This control is called "monetary policy."

"Fiscal policy," on the other hand, is the policy pursued by the U. S. Treasury with respect to taxation, spending and borrowing. To the extent that fiscal policy involves Treasury borrowing from the commercial banks (and the banks buy quantities of government securities) fiscal policy is plainly subordinate to monetary policy.

And it is plain that monetary policy can thwart fiscal policy, as it apparently did in 1968. As fast as fiscal policy (taxation, in this case) took purchasing power away from people, monetary policy put new purchasing power in their pockets, by increasing bank reserves, which in turn encouraged the banks to make more loans, creating more money and putting it into circulation.

This experience will not have been in vain if it opens the eyes of the American people to the power which has been delegated to the seven men who compose the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. FEW PEOPLE EVEN KNOW THEIR NAMES, YET THEY ARE APPOINTED BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, WITH THE APPROVAL OF THE SENATE, serve 14-year terms, and exert more power over American society than even the nine men who make up the United States Supreme Court. Not "nine old men" but seven rule our economy.

Question Box

Question No. 1022: Should a man's aim be happiness? If not what should it be?

Answer: It certainly should not be transient or temporary happiness. If a man aims at this kind of happiness, he may achieve it, but he will tire of it and then have nothing.

A man's aim should be doing one's best—that is, doing the best we can at all times under the circumstances—while respecting the rights of others. He should ever be striving to develop and grow, both intellectually and spiritually. If he does this, the material results that he wants and needs will follow, as will happiness.

OUT OF CONTEXT

To the Editor:

Your article in Sunday's paper ("CC Symposium Features Violent Words, Thoughts") sounded like the product of a whining and pouting child unable to get its way. Your sense of good taste violated and your photographers barred from covering Friday's play, you sought revenge via a carefully managed article that more properly belonged on the editorial page. By cleverly stringing together quotes out of context and by hand picking a few CC students and others in the community who objected to the Symposium, you provided an outstanding example of news management and petty journalism on the local level. Minus the four-letter words (which might have helped you to make your point), you resorted to many of the tactics that you found so objectionable when used by some of the participants in the Symposium. The only difference is that you attempted to conceal them behind a cloak of clean newspaper copy and precise grammar.

Rather than the substance of the Symposium and its implications for Colorado Springs and for American life in general, you elected in this final article to deal with tactics and personalities. Even if we assume that there was little substance to present and examine, two wrongs most certainly don't make a right.

Not withstanding the coed who became "physically sick" and the offended grandmother, the Symposium was quite healthy for Colorado Springs. It came like a foreign import into this provincial and complacent city and possibly awakened a few people to some of the sober realities in our world. The article attempted to convey the impression that the general sentiment of students at Colorado College toward the Symposium proceedings was negative. I sincerely doubt that this corresponds to the actual facts. That the college student (especially the Colorado College student) is typically like a gentle lamb quietly absorbing middle-class values and attitudes is an illusion which must be shattered.

I feel very sorry for the people in the community who have decided to withhold money from the College or in other ways bring pressure to bear on it. These are the people in our society who are most to be pitied. Determined not to see beyond their own backyard gates, they substitute their economic and political pressure games for the free exchange of ideas.

PRETTY ROUGH SHAPE

To the Editor:

I appreciate your editorial in protest of what went on at Colorado College last week and Friday night. I have written protests to the City Council and the College and I am going to get others to protest also.

We are in pretty rough shape when we allow our young people to be taught sex orgies and how to swear. Perhaps Colorado College has special immunity, but if anyone else had done what they did wide open all would have been in jail.

Please have more editorials in protest.

NO OFFENSE INTENDED

To the Editor:

This letter is expressly directed to Mr. James F. Wilkey in reference to his letter "Act Versus Motive" Thursday, January 16, 1969.

Mr. Wilkey, please avoid taking any offense for this is NOT my intention. I do recognize your right to express your own thoughts in the manner which you did. However, I too, reserve this right. Touche?

If your letter was intended to be a form of satire my ignorance (lack of humor) did somehow prevent me from deriving any creditable point of issue. You must be kidding!

However, if you are seriously jusitified as to your opinion I must say that you are very fortunate indeed; not having to be burdened down with the less weighter matters of our day. Boy, are you lucky to be able to discern and contribute such a wealth of information.

Yep, I wish that I had mind enough to be able to lavish both time and energy upon such earth-shaking and socially devasting problems as haircuts (statues, courthouses, gravel pits, etc. etc. included as voiced by others.)

Forgive me for concluding so abruptly at this point but I'm afraid that I may "blow my mind" if I further allow these problems to overwhelm my thinking processes. I just cannot tolerate the pressures that these matters inflict upon my very limited ability to adjust to such awesomeness.

O' well, maybe a tranquilizer or two and I'll find solace in the LESSER evils of world-wide upheaval and potential mass destruction that I foolishy see nearing MY door.

The By-Line Story

Criticism of our coverage of the Colorado College symposium results to some extent from a misunderstanding of the by-lined story as compared to a straight news story.

By-lines are used by newspapers for various reasons. Sometimes they recognize an outstanding job, for instance where a lot of research is required to develop a story. By-lines also recognize personal coverage of a play or speech. Practically all reviews of plays carry by-lines. Stories which contain "interpretive" reporting usually carry a by-line. The reporter then becomes more individually responsible for the story although, of course, the final responsibility is the newspaper's.

Wit and Whimsy

A comedian was in need of a straight man and was interviewing a young man for the job.

Joe (the comedian) — I need a man who can keep a straight face throughout my performance and who will under no circumstances allow a smile to show on his face no matter what I say or do. Now what are your qualifications for the job?

Young Larry — Well, I used to be a page boy in the House of Representatives.

"Psychiatrists say it's not good for a man to keep too much to himself. The Department of Internal Revenue says the same thing." — Harold J. Blaschko, Arcadia (Wis.) News-Leader.

In a local art exhibit, the first prize was given to the curator's wall map of the Washington freeway system. The mistake was discovered two days later. — George Hill, Seattle.

Isn't it a shame that future generations can't be here to see all the wonderful things the government is doing with their money.

Has the need for conformity presently reached such awesome proportion that it has now become the prostitute for those who so condemned it in the first place?

In order to "be involved," "become a part," "do your own thing," is it necessary to first extinguish reason and logic, and then appropriate the "thing" of others?

Selling of minds took place during several sessions presented at the Colorado College Symposiumm on "Violence." I was there. I saw fear of being on the outside, not "with-it." I saw surrender to animal passions sweep many along with the crowd.

If at these sessions you gave your approval or disapproval but did not reason with what was compelling you to do so, you sold a precious mind for a pittance. And some say the establishment is dangerous! No threatening world power except Hitleristic Germany has caused such a travesty of justice. No nuclear explosion has created such potentially disasterous consequences. You alone are responsible for perhaps the gravest crime against mankind.

Logic was betrayed during a ribald auction block session of vicious threat frosted with weak comedy spread by Dick Gregory. You did your share against such a crime if you recognized, underneath it all, the blaring loopholes in his reasoning. If you calculated the possible manifestations of fanaticism and perversion in his threats, if logical conclusions to initated commentary were boldly absent to your meaningful hearing, then you ARE concerned with the human condition. And for a starter, you still preserve your own. But, if you only noticed how witty this "entertainer" was, how refreshingly bold his delivery was, then, my friend, you are in trouble.

Look far. Search valiantly for your mind. If your vision is slightly blurred, it may be that this once-powerful organ, your brain, has disintegrated right before your eyes from lack of fruitful use.

Maybe originally you were well-directed by concern for the oppressed. But did you, in frantic desire to get to the heart of the matter, unwittingly condemn, to outside control, a mind that had the capabilities of understanding that matter and bettering it? The trigger to this resultant madness, as dangerous in its thoughtless participation and impassioned involvement as sharks are violent in a feeding frenzy, was the first moment you turned away from your mind to pay homage only to pagan senses.

Art swindlers are as old as enslavement of one man by another. You who sold your mind to the highest bidder, and your body and being along with it, bought an advertised masterpiece that was sorrowfully nothing but another cheap imitation. Such was "Dionysus in 69." Garbage dressed or undressed is still garbage. How, even with the slightest employment of rational ability, can garbage be transformed into a gourmet specialty simply by defending it as a work of art?

Yes, I was there, too. I saw. So do not deign to call me short-sighted, for I have eyes that watch with mental caution for those who desire a return to slavery.

Do not think you can shame me into submission with your vile, abusive wording, for I have ears unafraid and attuned to tracking the content of your system.

Do not condemn my dissent under the guise of generation gap accusations. The reason I do not leap upon your disasterbent bandwagon is that my mind functions clearly throughout your professional presentation of senilities.

I will find in my heart pity for those of you so twisted, perverted, and corrupt, who masterfully use the subtle and synthetic techniques at your disposal to encourage others into mental slavery. I pity largely the amount of mis-directed power that could have been utilized for the betterment of a society instead of the destruction of it, aggrandizement for self, and pollution of the populace.

Where were you who could have seen what I saw?

Do not be misled. I, for one, shall do what I can to smell out the mind-sellers in their fuzzy ways. If need be, with the same subtle and synthetic techniques of the mind manipulators who advocate violence and total freedom, I shall pressure for the preservation and utilization of the mind.

Two paths will then be presented in problems of society and individual. The rational must be as strongly represented as the irrational. The potential mind-seller will be forced to choose for himself the direction he will take.

But at least you of the irrational pressures, the not-so-gentle persuaders, will not have all the say. With dual but opposing bombardments, the potential mind-seller will HAVE to THINK for himself. In that alone, I will have already won more than half of my battle with you!

I am baiting you, ALL of you. Now what are you going to do about it!

DOG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yuki, former President Lyndon B. Johnson's favorite mongrel dog returned to the Texas ranch Tuesday, a day after his master.

"Yuki helped with the transition," a White House aide said. The mongrel met President Nixon's two dogs when they arrived ahead of time at the White House.

The White House beagles were sent to the ranch before the change in administration Monday.

Looking at Hollywood

BY FLORABEL MUIR

HOLLYWOOD — Shayesteh Nazemi, Iran's premier dress designer who numbers among her clients members of the Shah's household as well as Sophia Loren, did the $80,000 wardrobe for Elke Sommer in her starring role in "The Heroes," first joint United States-Iranian feature film venture, filmed in Tehran. As a reward for her fabulous costumes for Elke, director Jean Negulesco awarded the talented lady with a role in the picture, but she had to turn it down. Seems that in her own arsenal of clothing, she didn't have any garments tawdry enough for her role as a poor peasant girl!

It's amazing how the top stars who usually do not do television guest shots are scrambling for the chance to appear on Hugh Hefner's new one-hour TV series "Playboy After Dark." Jim Brown, Bobby Darin, Debbie Reynolds and many others will be popping up on the "Playboy After Dark" screens.

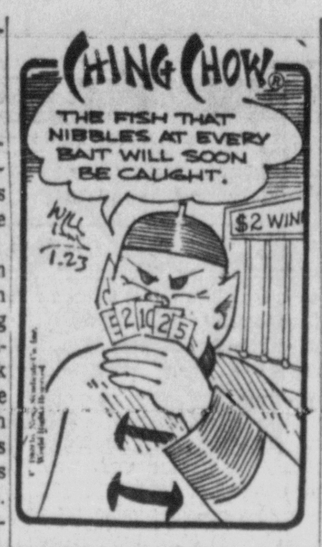
The requests are coming in from all over the country from parent - teacher groups asking for a print of "High on a Rainbow," Universal's Robert Stack "Name of the Game" feature film for television which thoroughly explored the dangers of the new "speed" narcotics and their effects on teenagers. "We are floored by the response," Stack commented, while Universal was floored by the ratings — which boosted that show up to 12th in the national count.

Even film is getting socked in with the Hong Kong flu. James Mason who produced and starred in "The Age of Consent," imported a print to show Columbia execs why he thinks Helen Mirren is a brilliant new actress-find. But the film has been locked up at customs for weeks because customs men are flued in.

Gene Kelly took a look at a rough cut of his "Hello, Dolly" and the screen's greatest dancer calls his "Dolly" star, Michael Crawford, "the greatest instant-dancer in history." Crawford had never danced before taking the part, but Kelly had seen his agile comedy work and knew Michael could dance. Just put him into a cup, add water and stir — instant lightly fantastic. But Crawford will now be a veteran dancer when he undertakes the title role of Kelly's "Tom Swift," his next picture.

Industry insiders are saying that Marlon Brando will be back on top again once Universal releases "The Night of the Following Day." This suspense drama, produced by Jerry Gershwin and Elliott Kastner, has Marlon as a kidnapper of a pretty college girl. Marlon has dropped considerable poundage and reports are that he looks better in "The Night of the Following Day" than in any film since "Waterfront." Brando and co-star Richard Boone are mighty menacing in their roles as the kidnappers in this wildly suspenseful picture.

Trust Anne Heywood to play the most outrageous roles in pictures today. She was the reluctant lesbian lover in "The Fox;" a nun who gets raped in "The Lady;" and for her starring role in "I Want What I Want," Anne plays a boy who's obsessed with becoming a girl!



Sirhan Trial Could Last Three Months

By GENE HANDSAKER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan's trial on charges of murdering Sen. Robert F. Kennedy could last another three months or more, suggests Judge Herbert V. Walker.

Walker made the observation Wednesday as the prosecution and defense engaged in another round of seating and unseating prospective jurors. Three were provisionally accepted; three others removed.

This left a dozen jurors still tentatively seated, just where the proceedings were last Friday when the prosecution said it was willing to accept the jury.

Since then, half of the 12 have been removed—five by peremptory challenges of the prosecution or defense. One was excused for medical reasons.

The tentative jury is now three women and nine men.

As additional prospective jurors were brought in to the courtroom late Wednesday, Judge Walker told them they should determine from their employes whether their employment would be jeopardized by sitting on a jury "possibly three months or longer."

Sirhan, 24, the shock-haired, 115-pound Jordanian whose cleanshaven, pale olive cheeks wear a perpetual shadow of beard, sat at the far left end of the long counsel table, sometimes in whispered, animated conversation with Russell E. Parsons, nearest of three defense lawyers.

Other times he gravely studied the faces of prospective jurors and the lawyers asking them whether they could impose the death penalty.

Questioning of jury candidates was repetitious yet dramatic in its painstaking search.

Black-robed and spectacled, with huge white bushy brows and a naturally harsh voice, Walker, dean of the county's bench, patiently asked each if he or she understood:

That jurors alone "judge the facts."

That they must "follow the law as I give it to you regardless of any opinion you have of the law."

That the defendant "is presumed innocent until proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt."

That they would be confined in hotel quarters throughout the trial, ordinarily out of touch with others although husbands or wives could visit them over weekends "at your expense."

Arson in High School Being Probed

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP) — Firemen fought six separate blazes in Pughkeepsie High School early today, closing the 1,500-student school for the day. Police termed the fires arson.

Firefighters raced to the two-story, concrete and stone structure shortly before 5 a.m. Smoke and water damage was termed considerable in the auditorium, many classrooms and storage closets. A number of windows were smashed.

School Supt. Dr. Edwin Hunger called off classes for the day, but said the school would reopen tomorrow. Also closed today was adjoining Forbus Junior High School, which incurred some smoke damage.

There were no injuries.

Some American drivers regard foregn medallions as status accessories, especially for imported cars. Many an English sports car bears a GB emblem, though the vehicle has never touched tire to its native soil.

MEETING

BONN, Germany (AP) — West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger would like to meet with President Nixon soon.

Pueblo Depot Employs Average of 3,500

Approximately 3,500 civilian workers were employed at the Pueblo Army Depot during 1968. Peak employment occurred during the summer when 121 student aids and 4 faculty members were hired under various federal summer employment programs.

On Dec. 31, 1968, there were 3,264 permanent civilian employees and 124 temporary employees on the depot rolls for a total of 3,388. Not included in these figures were approximately 30 military personnel and other categories of personnel not paid directly by the depot.

Among those not listed on depot personnel strength are employees of the depot concessionaire (operator of food and vending machine services), contractor personnel such as janitorial services, government employees such as missile maintenance technicians assigned by other commands and company and manufacturing representatives.

Presently represented at the depot are contract personnel from the Bendix Corporation, Teterboro, New Jersey; the Martin-Marietta Corporation, Orlando Division, Orlando, Florida; Western Electric Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina; and the Raytheon Company, Andover, Massachuseets.

The depot strength has, for the past ten years, remained very stable, with the average depot employee having served approximately 14 years and having approximately 3 dependents.

SHORT CUT

ROLLA, Mo. (UPI)—It was too difficult for Pirooz Binesh to finish high school here, so he simply enrolled in college instead. Pirooz, from Abadan, Iran, had been sent to Rolla by his family to complete his senior year in high school. His brother Bizhan was a chemical engineering student at the University of Missouri at Rolla.

But when Pirooz arrived, he found he had no place to live and that there were problems fitting him into the high school schedule. A university official suggested Pirooz take the university's entrance examniation. Pirooz did, and quickly found himself a freshman, moving into a dormitory.

Sixty-two per cent of Northwestern University students do not smoke, according to a survey. Of those who do smoke, 42 per cent started smoking in college, 45 per cent started in high school and the rest started before high school.

Chicago Loses Convention Events

CHICAGO (AP) — The disturbances during the Democratic National Convention have cost Chicago 12 of the roughly 3,000 conventions expected here in the next three years, a city official reported today.

Alvin Monroe, account executive of the Chicago Convention Bureau, said the cancellations came after the police and anti-war protesters battled in the streets during the week of Aug. 25, 1968.

"It seems to be confined to the intellectual community," Monroe said as he listed some of the organizations that are going elsewhere:

The American Psychological Association, the American Historical Association, the American Political Science Association, the American Sociological Association, the Association of American Geographers, the Midwest Political Science Association and the Midwest Sociological Association.

Some had been scheduled to meet this year, some next year and some in 1971, Monroe said. He gave their total membership as about 30,000.

Johnson Gets Protection of Secret Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson's faithful shadows, his Secret Service escort, will be with him for the rest of his life unless he asks that they be withdrawn.

All former presidents and their wives have the right to the protection, although Johnson's two married daughters—who found during their dating years that agents accompanied them absolutely everywhere—will no longer be under the service's care.

Both Harry S. Truman and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower have chose to retain the protection, and agents also watch over Carolyn and John Kennedy, the children of assassinated President John F. Kennedy.

Kennedy's widow, Mrs. Aristotle Onassis, was entitled to protection until her remarriage. She and the children were covered by a special law.

Johnson's agents were visible Tuesday as he visited the LBJ State Park near his Texas ranch and struck out across a live oak pasture to chase deer in his car. The agents' car kept pace.

His protection will be a scaled-down version of the massive Secret Service presence that surrounded him during his five years in the White House.

"We don't talk about numbers," a spokesman said when asked how many agents would be assigned to Johnson, but he said they would use the same facilities at the ranch they did until Johnson left office at noon Monday.

Astrological Forecast

Carroll Righter

By Carroll Righter

FRIDAY'S FORECAST

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is certainly a day and a night to be as wise as the serpent and as harmless as the dove. Most everyone is trying to wangle what he wants or to even forcefully impose his will upon others. Accidents and arguments can cause much unhappiness unless caution is taken.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Why do you want to force your ideas on others? Don't jeopardize good will of associates and good friends. Show devotion and appreciation instead. Control your temper. Show you have finesse.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You feel limitation all around and want to start punching, but it would be well to see where you are making mistakes. Assist those in trouble. Don't become impatient at delays.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Your friends are in a bad mood now so do nothing that could s e v e r valued relationships. Avoid that social affair where someone you don't particularly like could be attending. Avoid arguments.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do nothing that will spoil your reputation that is so important a part of living. Show you are an A-1 citizen. You have excellent ideas, but study further before putting in operation.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have some excellent new ideas that are prompting you to make radical changes, but slow down and do this gradually. New contacts could also influence you to unwise and hasty activity. Be diplomatic.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't jump into new methods you know little about, since they could be full of trouble. Get busy being more efficient in present set-up. Then it can pay off very profitably in the near future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) An associate can be quite irate, so take care you do not add to the distemper. Be sure you carry through with commitments. Relieve all sorts of tensions this way and be happy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Although you feel that a coworker should do more, just do your job, that's all that is important. Don't make trouble for yourself. Do nothing that can injure your health.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't spend time in expensive recreation just now; wait for a better day. Get into the inexpensive right now, and avoid trouble. Have you taken care of that important business matter?

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) It would be much better to go through with expectations of family and show devotion instead of trying to deny your responsibilities. Stop arguing. Show you have real character.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try not to get an employee or a higher-up disturbed in the business world today. Hold your temper. Be careful in motion, also, and save yourself expense and suffering. Show you are courageous.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take care you do not act unwisely and incur the disfavor of business persons who control your financial affairs. Be sure to make repairs that are required to your home. Think of it on time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those born fighters who shows much temper early in life and thinks that anything can be gained merely through physical power. Instruct clever progeny early to consider rights o f others and maintain harmony. Give sports that will take edge off the fine strength here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

H. L. Hunt Writes

COMMUNIST REVOLUTIONARY TO BE ADMITTED INTO U.S.?

Those who want law and order preserved in the United States are disturbed by reports that Rudi Dutschke of West Germany may be allowed to enter this country as an immigrant.

Known as Red Rudi, Dutschke is Europe's leading student revolutionary, an admitted admirer of Marx, Lenin and Mao Tse-tung, and named his only son after Che Guevara.

Dutschke was responsible for a series of destructive riots in West Germany earlier this year. In West Berlin he led a mob of 3,000 who damaged property, erected barricades, and fought bitter battles with police. The main attacks were directed against a West German newspaper publisher who had pointed out Dutschke's communist sympathies.

Dutschke also promoted violence in Holland and England. His stated aim is to overthrow what he calls the "corrupt establishment" in the West.

Herbert Marcuse, University of California professor who preaches violence and supports the far left, is working for Dutschke's admittance into the U. S. If Dutschke is allowed to live in the United States, it can reasonably be expected he will continue his revolutionary activities, directing them against our government.

Our State Department has sound legal grounds for refusing an immigrant visa to this agitator. The Immigration and Nationality Act states that the government can bar any alien who advocates violence or who seeks to enter the U.S. "wholely, principally or incidentally to engage in activities which would . . . endanger the welfare, safety or security of the United States." Dutschke's past activities show beyond any doubt that his entry into this country would endanger our "welfare, safety or security." HLH

Flood Stricken Cities Calling For State Aid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Days of drenching rain left California soaked from end to end today, bringing an official state of emergency and fear for the safety of 10 persons trapped by a flooding stream.

For the first time in history, the U.S. Weather Bureau said, every one of its California stations reported rain Tuesday.

As flood-stricken cities called for aid, Gov. Ronald Reagan signed a declaration of emergency enabling the state to release funds and seek federal money.

A 16-inch total downpour has hit the Ojai-San Luis Obispo area of west-central California, trapping six boys and four men in an isolated area of Los Padres National Forest. The men included a sheriff's deputy, a Navy chief petty officer and a U.S. Forest Service ranger who had tried to rescue the youths.

One man who had joined up with the group was rescued after he said he had been washed off a Navy tractor on which they had tried to cross rampaging Sespe Creek.

"Water was rising up over us," John Scott Eckersley, 28, said in Ojai Community Hospital. "One by one, we got numb from the cold and just slipped away.

"The chief was first to go. Finally, there were just two of us, the sheriff and me."

Standing atop the tractor with water up to their necks,said Eckersley, "He fell back on me, and I went down a few times and hit my head but managed finally to get to the river bank."

Military and U.S. Forest Service helicopters were ready to fly into the area, about 30 miles north of Ojai, as soon as rain subsided.

The missing persons included sheriff's deputy Chester Larsonn, Navy CPO Bob Sears and U.S. Forest ranger Jim Greenhill, who had taken the tractor to reach Robert Samples, 43, of Canoga Park, and six neighbor boys out with him on a weekend hike when the rains began.

The boys were identified as Ronnie Castle, 13; Bobby Castle, 14; Frank Donato, 13; John Rauh, 14; Donnie Salsbury, 10, and Eddie Salsbury, 12.

After they failed to return Sunday as arranged to their homes, about 50 miles to the southeast in Los Angeles County, the boys' families gathered near the search.

Meanwhile, slackening rain was reported in the state.

Major concern centered on Sacramento and San Joaquin Valley rivers where levee breaks could flood rich farm lands. High flows were reported in the Sacramento, Cosumnes and Stanislaus rivers.

Sherman Island, where 200 residents were evacuated Monday night when a levee broke, was about two-thirds under water.

In the north part of the state streams were receding as the rain changed to occasional showers.

Fifty residents of Starvation Flats spent a second night away from their homes waiting for floodwaters of the Van Duzen river to subside.

Snow and high wind hampered travel over highways in the Sierra, although major routes were open. Rock and land slides closed some secondary roads and two rail lines. And strong winds rapped central coastal areas.

Afro-American Class Is Being Proposed

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A faculty committee at Harvard University says the absence of courses in Afro-American culture "is the single most potent source of the black students' discontent" at the school.

The committee recommended Tuesday that Harvard act immediately to strengthen its Afro-American and African studies and to enrich the cultural and social life of Negro students.

It said that "many students... expressed the need to legitimatize, inwardly as well as publicly, their presence at Harvard while other blacks remain in the ghetto, confronting its problems, bearing its burdens."

Oil needs of the United States are expected to grow from the current 12.3 million barrels a day to 17.9 million by 1980.

By Ele and Walt Dulaney

Dear Ele and Walt: My parents ruled that none of us kids could drive until 18. My older brothers and sisters all got to drive when they were 18. Now that I'm 17, I really don't see why they can't change their minds and allow me to learn to drive. I don't think my older brothers and sisters would mind since they've already left home. Besides, my younger brothers and sisters can do many things that I was not allowed to do until I was two years older than they. I realize that what they're allowed to do isn't as important as driving, but still it means the same thing: times are changing. Am I wrong to feel this way? — Lester.

Dear Lester: It's true, times are changing. Now see if you can document it so that your parents realize they've already diverted from the past. Sit down with pencil and paper and list the privileges under consideration: staying out after 10 p.m.; having an allowance of $5 or more; driving a car. Draw lines to make a column for each of the children and indicate what age they received a specific privilege.

Then be ready to explain how you'd finance driving lessons, or cover any additional insurance costs. Thus prepared, ask for a calm conference with mom and dad and try to give them new perspective on your request. — Ele and Walt.

Dear Walt: Have you ever heard of a girl asking for a lock of boy's hair? This actually happened to me. This sort of ugly girl in my homeroom came up and asked me for some of my hair! I asked her why and she made joke about voodoo and black magic. Since then she's asked me nearly every day. I don't want to give here the hair but it might be the best way to shut her up. What do you think? — Curly.

Dear Curly: Obviously you're something special to the girl. She's eagerly awaiting any sign she's more than just a cipher to you. If you give her a lock of hair, it will not only be converted into a home shrine or locket amulet but will be taken as an invitation to further pursuit. I think you'd do the girl a disservice to encourage her any further. Just say, "Cindy, this is final. I'm not parting with one hair, so forget it." Then walk off anytime she brings up the subject again. — Walt.

Dear Ele: I am a boy and I have an embarrassing problem. Whenever my girlfriend and I make love, she gets carried away and gives me several passion bites. Some of these can be hidden but others are in places where they're clearly visible no matter what you wear. I've told her several times about this, but she always forgets. So is there anything else to do afterwards so they won't be noticed? — Marked.

Dear Marked: Once the skin is bruised, there's no way to abort the discoloration. The only solution is to camouflage the result. Steel your nerve and go to the cosmetic counter of a store where no one knows you. Ask the girl to test several pancake make-up shades on your hand until she finds a match for your natural skin color. Then make a purchase to use as touch-up when you next need it.

Here's an uninvited postscript: Knowing your gal gets so carried away in love making puts the responsibility for maintaining standards or taking precautions squarely on you. Are you accepting it? — Ele.

Man Jailed on Assault Count

Everett L. Osborne, 38, 152 Rainbow Place was taken to county jail early today and booked for investigation of assault and battery, the sheriff's office reported.

Deputy Sheriff Howard Schafer said Osborne had beat up his wife, Janet Osborne, and was so belligerent that Schafer and Sgt. Larry Holien had to use force to subdue him and transfer him to jail.

The central portion of the Colombia-Venezuela frontier zone crosses the nearly empty prairies of llanos. These are dry half the year, swampy and flooded the other half.

Carson Medic Is a Man Of Many Nations

Sgt. 1C Jyri Laats, noncommissioned officer in charge of the emergency room at Ft. Carson U.S. Army Hospital, is a most unusual soldier.

With a background of service as a medic with Special Forces, he has just completed 12 years in the Army and re-enlisted for six more.

He is fluent in seven languages, a parachutist with more than 200 jumps to his credit, and before joining the U.S. Army he fought for two years in the Russian-Finnish War.

Laats was born in Tartu, Estonia, but has stayed in any one place only briefly throughout his life. He escaped from Estonia in March 1943 to avoid capture by the Russians or Germans. He went to Finland, where he fought the Russians until 1945.

He has visited most of the countries of Europe; Malaya; Australia; Brazil; Uruguay; North Africa; Alaska; and Thailand.

In the American Army he has served with the 82d and 11th Airborne and the 77th, 7th and 10th Special Forces.

While with 7th Special Forces on maneuvers at Camp Dawson, W. Va., Laats saw a parachutist land in a lake. He swam out, brought the soldier to shore and applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Laats is single, and lists San Francisco as his home town. He enjoys sports, especially skindiving, skydiving and cross-country skiing.

11th District Announces New Deputy DAs

William R. Stinemeyer, District Attorney for the 11th Judicial District, announced in Canon City his deputy DAs will be two Canon City attorneys and a Salida attorney.

Named from Canon City were Bruce Johnson and William V. Crossman. The Salida deputy will be Garry Imig, newcomer to Chaffee County associated with John Boyle.

The deputies, all planning to continue their private practice, will draw pay of $5,200 each. Stinemeyer will receive $7,500 annually and will also continue his private law practice.

Fremont, Chaffee, Park and Custer counties make up the 11th Judicial District. Crossman will work with Stinemeyer in Park and Custer Counties with Imig taking cases in Chaffee County. Stinemeyer said he will direct the overall handling of all cases. Crossman is associated with the new DA in his Canon City office.

Johnson is associated with Robert Fredrickson and William Schalow, attorneys in Canon City. He will handle the prosecution of felony cases in Fremont County.

Veteran DA criminal investigator John Snow has been retained in his position and will have offices in the Fremont County Court House.

The State of Colorado, for the first time, will pay a share of the bills for the DA's office. Starting on July 1, the Department of Institutions will pick up the tab for nearly one-third of the cost of running the office. The department has approved a payment of $15,000 of the office's total budget of $48,000.

Stinemeyer explained this is because of the heavy work load resulting from the State Penitentiary and the State Reformatory at Buena Vista both being located within the judicial district. The new DA said about 30 to 35 per cent of the work load of his office comes from these two institutions.

Airborne Group Learns Mountain Skills at Carson

The main body of C Company (Long Range Reconnaissance Patrol), 58th Infantry (Airborne), came to Ft. Carson last week by convoy.

The unit was stationed at Stuttgart, Germany, until August, when it was transferred to Ft. Riley, Kan. The men still wear the VII Corps patch and will be easy to recognize on post because of the wings on their fatigue caps.

At Carson, the infantry unit is attached to 4th Squadron, 12th Cavalry. The cavalry used to be an Army scouting force which traveled on horseback; but with mechanization came more sophisticated means of gathering information.

The 58th is a 151-man intelligence organization with a nucleus of 117 qualified jumpers. Its commander is Capt. Phillip J. Smith.

Men of the unit are hand picked. Each must be airborne- qualified — preferably ranger-qualified — and must be able to learn Morse code, which not everyone can master.

At Ft. Carson, the 58th training will emphasize mountaineering skills. Its members will also be making parachute drops with the aid of Ft. Carson helicopters and Air Force planes.

ALLEN-GOLDSMITH REPORT

Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — President Richard M. Nixon is launching his new administration with a couple of troublesome personnel problems which could take a little time to resolve.

One problem is the selection of qualified individuals to serve in sub-cabinet jobs. The other involves the replacement of Democratic incumbents in politically appointive jobs down the administration chain.

Six weeks ago, when Nixon aides were soliciting job recommendations from many nonpartisan sources, including individuals listed in Who's Who, it was said that Nixon would draw his top administrators quickly from a large pool of well qualified manpower. Those statements appear to have been over-optimistic.

The problem is clear at the level of assistant secretaries in government departments and their top deputies. the Nixon "team" is now taking the field with a flock of vacancies in these high echelons.

Nixon aides are now explaining that Cabinet members in the new administration are moving slowly and deliberately to assure selection of top officials who can work harmoniously with their associates. There is a little more to it than that, however.

Like all of his immediate predecessors, Nixon is having some trouble finding the right man for each of the important jobs which he must fill. That large pool of qualified manpower is not quite what it appeared to be in the election's joyous aftermath.

Top Republicans now admit privately that some of the lawyers, bankers and business who were enthusiasticaly "available" in late November had second thoughts when the job offered was not in the Cabinet but a somewhat anonymous post a step or two down in the government hierarchy.

PATRONAGE — In the final analysis, the more troublesome problem for Nixon could be the filling of non-civil service jobs a couple of echelons down from the sub-cabinet. Involved is the question of top-level federal patronage.

Some Republican politicians and would-be job holders, with their party taking control of government for only the second time in 36 years, want Nixon and his aides to move aggressively in taking over positions which are not protected by civil service. Many of them think President Eisenhower was not aggressive enough when he took over in 1953.

"The Kennedy people did it right," recalls an Eisenhower Administration job holder. "When I got to work on the day after inauguration, I was told I had my choice of resigning or being fired. I resigned, of course."

Veteran GOP leaders in Congress are among those urging a sweep-out policy by Nixon and his top aides. They think the GOP should act to counter the long years of Democratic control during which even the civil service rolls became, in their view, full of Democrats.

Nixon's recruiting experts are reported concentrating on less than a thousand top jobs — administrators, consultants, personal aides and the like — which are identified as subject to political appointment. Actually, however, there are about 4,000 such jobs on a listing compiled for Congress in what used to be called the "Green Book." (it now has a buff cover.)

Some GOP professionals would like to see the Nixon Administration assign some political appointee in each department to see that those political jobs, when available, are filled by Republicans recommended by the National Committee or GOP offices on Capitol Hill. That, a few old-timers recall, is how it was handled under the old master, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

A BIT OF A MESS — These GOP activists have been assured, generally, by Nixon aides that the new President will move to open up the sort of jobs, at upwards of $20,000 a year, which are the cement in political construction work. However, Bryce Harlow, the new President's top congressional liaison man, admitted last week that the personnel situation is something of a mess at present.

Harlow met privately with a group of Nixon's old friends in Congress who call themselves the "Chowder and Marching Society." In their discussion, it became clear that such actions as the Who's Who solicitation have produced a blizzard of paper which has delayed the replacement of Democrats with faithful Republicans.

Some House Republicans came away from the session with Harlow convinced that it will be March or April before Nixon's aides can get the problem in hand and set up a going personnel operation.

Such a delay is worrisome for some of the Republicans. They are frankly afraid that displacement of some Democratic appointees, if it is not done soon, will be difficult to do at all.

Some Republicans in the Senate and the House would like to take a hand in listing the replacements which should be made in the government departments and independent agencies. So far, at least, they have not been asked to do that.

Nursing Course Begins Monday At St. Francis

A licensed practical nursing course will begin at St. Francis Hospital Monday in cooperation with School District 11 and the Colorado Department of Employment, according to P. W. Hendricks, manager of the local employment office, 117 S. Wahsatch Ave.

This is only one of many courses organized under the Man Power Development an Training Act to provide much-needed qualified help to local employers who offer good job opportunities, Hendricks said.

This will be the sixth practical nursing course that has been offered locally, he said. For both men and women, the class will have 20 students and will continue for one year.

Hendricks said that there were more than 100 applications for the class, and prospective students were chosen following a test. Qualifications require that applicants be unemployed or underemployed. A similar class, also with 20 students, has been underway for several weeks.

"Upon completion of the course, students will receive a diploma and be qualified to take state examinations," he said.

At present, a stenographic class is being held at Blair Business College, Inc., he said. In the group are 25 students, and the class will continue for 40 weeks.

"There is a great need in the Pikes Peak Region for qualified secretaries, mechanics, machinists and upholsterers," he pointed out. "There are many really good job openings available, but only a few of the many applicants can qualify."

Under the Man Power Development and Training Act, he said, the Department of Education and Colorado Department of Employment offer classes in just about any trade or skill in which people are interested, he said. School District 11 is responsible for the training and the employment department selects students and pays all their expenses while they train.

Hendricks said that his department works closely in this program with the welfare department, Community Action and the Rehabilitation Department.

"We pay their tuition, for their books and give them a training allowance," he said. "Chances are, if a school they're interested in is not given locally we can refer them to one out of town. For example, classes for barbers, meat cutters and electronic technicians are held out of town."

Hendricks pointed out that his department follows through on these students and from 75 to 80 per cent of them complete the various courses and go into related work.

Further information is available by contacting Hendricks at the Colorado Department of Employment, 117 S. Wahsatch Ave.

'Brainwashing' Term Hits Nerve With PPACG

That old bromide on "brainwashing" made by former Gov. George Romney last year continues to haunt politicians.

Last year, then-Commissioner Charlie Bickley used the expression, alleging that he was "being brainwashed on certain aspects of regional planning."

Tuesday, the word came back to roost at a meeting of the Pikes Peak Area Council of Governments (PPACG)

At one point in the meeting PPACG director Mike Meehan reminded the board (including county commissioners and Colorado Springs city councilmen) that the time was drawing near to make reservations for the Third Annual Conference of Regional Councils.

That conference, he pointed out, is to be held March 9-11 in San Francisco. The PPACG budget allows for attendance by two persons. Meehan definitely is going and he was looking for a likely companion.

Someone suggested new Commissioner John ("Call me Jack") Mitchell. Mitchell allowed as to how he might be persuaded to go, and then added:

"Should be interesting to pick up some facts — or at least to get brainwashed."

That promptly was followed, after the meeting, by some head-wagging on the part of PPACG planners and members who remembered Bickley's remark last year.

Two Women Fined For Shoplifting

Two women were fined by County Court Judge Jack Roeser Wednesday for shoplifting.

The first was Cora Aurora Maestas, 21, 1128 S. El Paso St. who paid an $80 fine for stealing a $12.97 coat from Arlan's Department Store, 1801 N. Union Blvd, Jan. 10.

The second incident also happened at Arlan's where Evelyn Mae Oskanick, 18, 402 E. San Rafael St. took a nightgown worth $2.94 Jan. 9.

She was fined $50 and costs.

Surtax Lag Is Causing Confusion

Editor's note: It is time to think about the income tax again. This is Chapter One of a series reviewing the regulations, with emphasis on taking advantage of all exclusions and deductions legally due you.

By RAY DE CRANE
NEA Publications

"More" is the byword of our times.

he worker demands more wages, arguing that everything he buys costs him more.

Corporations seek more profits than before; their stockholders constantly demand improvement over the past year's performance.

Government is not to be outdone. At all levels — city, county, state and federal — the cry is for more taxes.

You felt the first effects of this year's cry for more on the first day of the new year. On Jan. 1, 1969, your Social Security taxes went up. A year ago you were assessed at the rate of 4.4 per cent on the first $7,800 of

The worker demands more earnings. This year's rate: 4.8 per cent.

But the big blow is still ahead. When you file your federal income tax return between now and April 15 you will receive the full effect of that 10 per cent surcharge that was in the headlines most of last year. As everyone knows by now, the surcharge is a reality.

It hit you first in mid-July when your withholding deductions from pay checks were increased because of the surcharge. You will find when you complete your tax return that even the increased deductions were not enough.

Congress made the surcharge retroactive to last April 1. But the increased withholding didn't begin until July 15. That three and a half month's lag will have to be made up when you file this year's tax return.

If you have been in the habit of paying an additional sum when you file your return you'll pay more this year.

If you have been fortunate enough to obtain a refund in the past, it will be smaller this year.

Never before has it been so advisable to be fully informed on your rights so that you can claim every possible deduction, thereby reducing your tax to the lowest level possible. Tax savings offer you the best savings possible, since they represent after-tax money. A $1 savings on your income tax return is worth an additional $1.25 or more in earned income on which a tax is still due.

In this series of articles, of which this is the first, simple, easy-to-understand instructions will be given designed to help save money in the process.

Clip and save them for the valuable assistance they will offer when you sit down to complete your own return.

Airport Expansion Concern of Planners

Peterson Field development-expansion continues to be a concern of local and regional planners.

Directly affecting the Peterson Field Study were three major, proposed amendments to the local zoning ordinances that were aired at a planning meeting Tuesday.

Those amendments would specify height limitations for various zones related to aviation; would regulate land uses within specified areas adjacent to the airport; and would propose a third area of zoning where a new section would be created that would regulate the location of airfields and the uses permitted.

Tuesday, planners with the Pikes Peak Area Council of Governments (PPACG) told board members and observers that:

"It is apparent that in addition to considering alternative proposals for expansion of the airport, measures must be taken in regard to preparing land development regulations for the areas adjacent to Peterson Field."

"memorandum: Regulation of Land Development in Proximity to Peterson Field" was outlined for PPACG chairman Stan Johnson and his board by Council of Governments' paid director Mike Meehan at a meeting Tuesday. The session, lasting three-fourths of the morning, was held in the county commissioners' conference room.

In attendance were the three commissioners, Keith McBurney, John Mitchell and James Ross; Colorado Springs city councilmen, Mrs. Betty Krouse, Andy Marshall and George Pfalmer; Fountain Mayor Sigurd Aga; Manitou Springs Mayor Ralph Sumner; Gary Boettcher of the El Paso County Planning Department; and Meehan's assistant and director of the PPACG's allied transportation study, H.E. (Bud) Owsley.

Part of the PPACG special meeting was Meehan's and Owsley's status report on activities, including the memorandum given on the Peterson Field projected expansion PPACG planners are working on the study in conjunction with the city of Colorado Springs and Gregg Isbill & Associates, paid coordinating consultants drafting the final expansion package plans.

Sandwiched into Meehan's report was an item specified in the Isbill report that states "the U.S. Congress has expressed its interest in the regulation of land use in airport areas, including the encouragement of local authorities to use zoning powers through a 1964 amendment to the Federal Airport Act.

"The act now provides that as a condition precedent to the approval of any airport project, the administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration shall receive assurances that appropriate action, including the adoption of zoning laws, has been or will be taken, to the extent reasonable, to restrict the use of land adjacent to or in the immediate vicinity of the airport to activities and purposes compatible with normal airport operations including landing and takeoff of aircraft."

The basic purpose of airport zoning, Meehan said, is to prevent the creation or establishment of "structures or objects of natural growth which would constitute hazards or obstructions to aircraft operating to, from and in the vicinity of a particular airport." The zoning ordinance, he said, can be an effective method of controlling the height of structures and objects of natural growth and of generally obtaining compatibility in the use of property in the immediate vicinity of the airport.

Meehan said that, in keeping with the foregoing intentions, it is suggested that the local area consider three amendments to the local zoning ordinances:

—A section incorporating the regulations specified in Part 77 of the Federal Aviation Regulations and reflected in the Model Airport Regulations. This amendment would specify height limitations for various zones related to aviation (that is — instrument approach zone, non-instrument approach zone, transition zone, horizontal zone and others related specifically to military airfields.)

Additionally, this amendment would establish a review procedure for determining whether proposed construction or modifications of existing uses would constitute hazards to aircraft operations. These restrictions would apply universally to any of the zones established in this amendment to the ordinances "and would fulfill the requirements of the FAA administrator," Meehan notde.

—A second proposed amendment would regulate land uses within specified areas, in proximity to the airport. The intent of this section would be to promote land uses in the airfild ande avoid conflicts in us and occupancy of adjacent property.

This particular section, its drafters say, would be similar to conventional zoning in that permitted uses and allowable densities would be specified. Greater flexibility of land uses in the area coverd by this regulation could be accomplished through the use of Planned Unit Development as already contained in the ordinance, Meehan said.

"The application of planned unit zoning," Meehan outlined, "should be predicated on the existence of a general plan for land use in the area being considered."

In connection with this, a generalized land use is being prepared for the Peterson Field area and will be available at the time the suggested amendments are completed, it was point out in the memorandum.

—A third area of zoning is suggested "where a new section would be created that would regulate the location of airfields and the uses permitted." This section would place "reasonable constraints on the possible location of airports and would specify minimum distances from existing facilities and similar regulations related to aviation," it was pointed out by Meehan.

This section might also contain, Meehan said, a permitted uses section which would restrict the use of property so zoned to those compatible with and associated with aircraft and terminal facility operations.

Florence City Council Whips Routine Agenda

The Florence city council, meeting this week, whipped through a routine session in 45 minutes.

An ordinance, No. 535, was passed on final reading and entered on the city books, and the council, by a vote of 5-2, approved a plan to place a culvert in the Union Ditch to make way for the construction of an auxiliary alleyway between Second and Third street.

Cost of the bridge across the irrigation ditch is about $600 which will be shared by the city and the Joe Michelli family under a prearranged agreement.

In his report to the city, Carl Meyers, manager, noted that 10 contractors have been bonded and licensed here so far in 1969. He also reported that reservoirs No. 1-2 have 27 feet of water while No. 3 has 10 feet with ¼ inch coming in from Adobe and ½ inch from Newlin creek.

The manager reported that no applications have been received yet for leasing the city swimming pool in 1969, but it was noted that the deadline for applications was set for March 15 giving prospective leasees ample time in which to apply.

Meyers also told the council that he has been in contact with the U.S. Soil Conservation Service agents in the area regarding flood control planning on Dry Creek. It was indicated that a representative of the agency will be asked to attend a future council meeting to help clarify issues regarding easements and procedures.

CAPT. PHILLIP V. MAYWALD

AFA Graduate Receives Air Force Cross

The nation's second highest combat decoration for extraordinary heroism in Vietnam has been awarded to Capt. Phillip V. Maywald, a 1963 Air Force Academy graduate.

He was awarded the Air Force Cross for his part in rescuing a downed Forward Air Controller (FAC) deep in enemy territory and under extremely heavy and accurate ground fire on May 21, 1968. Capt. Maywald is presently assigned to U.S. Air Forces in Europe.

Himself an FAC (pilot of a small, unarmed reconnaissance plane), Capt. Maywald was conducting a routine mission in the A Shau Valley when he heard another FAC, Maj. Gerald T. Dwyer, radio a distress call.

Racing to the area, Capt. Maywald located the downed FAC's position and established radio contact with him and the Airborne Rescue and Recovery command post. Moving out of the area so Maj. Dwyer's position would not be revealed to enemy ground forces, Capt. Maywald contacted a flight of helicopters in the area to begin a three-hour rescue attempt.

Capt. Maywald entered the Air Force in June, 1959 as a cadet at the Air Force Academy. In June, 1963 he was commissioned a second lieutenant upon graduation. While at the Academy he participated in most of the intramural sports programs.

Following graduation and commissioning, he was assigned to Reese AFB, Tex., for pilot training. Capt. Maywald was reassigned to the 720th Bomb October, 1964, where he served as a B-52 co-pilot until May 1967.

His next assignment was with the 23rd Tactical Air Support Squadron in Southeast Asia. During this tour, he flew the 01E Birddog and the 0-2 as a forward air controller over North and South Vietnam, accruing a total of 750 combat flying hours on 250 combat missions.

Two Gunmen Rob Store, Customer

Two armed gunmen robbed the 7-Eleven store located at 518 Chelton Road of an undetermined amount of cash Wednesday night and also stole $2 from a customer.

Two young men, both armed with .38 caliber revolvers, walked into the store and told the clerk, Douglas Allen Pittser, 727½ N. Nevada Ave., to "get over behind the counter." They then took the money from the cash register and attempted to open the safe but failed to do so.

The customer who was robbed was David Joseph Messing, 3718 E. Uintah St.

The first gunman was described as being 17-18 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall, 130 pounds, wearing a dark blue stocking cap pulled down over his head and blue jeans, Hush Puppies and a dark blue sweat shirt.

His companion was 18-20 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall, medium build, also wearing a dark blue stocking cap.

The descriptions are similar to those given by victims of at least two other armed robberies in the area in the past two weeks including a drug store and a small grocery store.

Two Unattended Deaths Probed

Colorado Springs police were called to investigate two cases of unattended death Wednesday and early Thursday morning.

Charles Hamilton Worthington, 88, 1115 E. Columbia St. was found dead in his home. Police were called to investigate by a neighbor, James Harold Barton, 113 E. Columbia St., who had not seen Worthington for a couple of days.

Dr. Raoul W. Urich, county coroner, was called to examine Worthington and said he died of apparently natural causes. The body was taken to Law Mortuary by E and E Ambulance.

The second unattended death was Joseph Andritsch, 74, 302 W. Dale St., whose body was discovered by his daughter, Nina Lynch, also of 302 W. Dale St.

Andritsch, according to his daughter, had been ill for sometime. Deputy Coroner Clarence West examined the victim and said he died of natural causes.

The body was taken to Swan Mortuary by E and E Ambulance.

"OF COURSE I want to impress him with my intellect, but first I have to get his attention!"

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

© 1969, By the Chicago Tribune N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

Is it a sin to be overweight? Food to me is more addictive than alcohol, and I have an uncontrollable appetite. I fear that I am not a very effective Christian because I am so terribly overweight. D.S.

The Bible teaches physical discipline, and warns us against gluttony. Never have good foods been so accessible, and never have people been more given to overeating. As Paul said, "Keep our body under," or keep our appetites under control. Physicians say that compulsive eating is as hard to conquer as compulsive drinking. The Bible teaches that we can actually glorify God by restraining and controling the appetite. "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatever ye do, do all to the glory of God (I Cor. 10:31.) Unrestrained appetites do not glorify God, for they weaken our bodies, which are the temples of the Holy Spirit.

Fasting was practiced by the early church, but has largely been abandoned by modern Christians because we moderns tend to pamper our physical appetites, rather than bringing them under the control of Christ. While overeating does not endanger the lives of others like overdrinking, it does weaken our Christian testimony, for it shows that we have not gained victory over our appetites.

January a Dry Month On the Peak

January, up to the present time, has been a "dry" month, according to the latest report from Roy Knull, South Slope caretaker on Pikes Peak.

What little snow that has fallen was light in nature and contained practically no precipitation, he said.

However, January is normally a light precipitation month on the watershed, with the average moisture being about .70 of an inch. Snowfall becomes heavier during the spring months.

At last report, all reservoirs are in good shape for this time of year.

Knull said that on many days this month the daytime temperature has gone above the 40 degree mark.

Mrs. Maxwell to Be Buried Friday

Graveside funeral services for Mrs. Mattie C. Maxwell, 90, of 33 Barnes Ave., will be 10 a.m. Friday in Evergreen Cemetery with Rev. Phil Green officiating.

Mrs. Maxwell died Wednesday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was born Jan. 2, 1879 in Desota, Kan., and had been a local resident since 1964. She previously lived in Canon City.

Mrs. Maxwell attended Ivywild Presbyterian Church.

Survivors include three nephews, H. W. Parker, Lawrence Parke, Ralph Kellogg, all of Colorado Springs; three nieces, Mrs. Flossie Emmons, Mrs. Bonnie Davis and Mrs. Lois Marsh, all of Ponca City, Okla.; and two sisters, Mrs. Jessie Kellogg, Colorado Springs and Mrs. Gussie Kuhn, Pleasant Hill, Mo.

District 11 Board Names Garfield Head

District 11 Board of Education appointed Mrs. Vera Scott principal of Garfield School

MRS. VERA SCOTT

Wednesday and announced the transfer of three principals as a result of the opening of two new elementary schools in September. The personnel actions will be effective in August.

The board also named Mrs. Scott assistant principal at Stratton School for the second semester of the current school year. Superintendent Thomas B. Doherty said the appointment will give Patrick Murphy time to work on equipping and staffing the two new schools. Murphy is now principal of Stratton School but will move to Wilson School in August with a principal for Roosevelt School to be named later.

Mrs. Scott, who is now a school social worker, will succeed Fred H. Matthiesen upon his retirement as Garfield principal. Born in Mississippi and raised in Texas, she holds a bachelor's degree from St. Augustine College in North Carolina, a master's degree from the Boston University School of Social Work and has taken additional work at Boston, Columbia, Cincinnati, and Denver Universities, Colorado College and Western State College.

Prior to joining the local schools as an English teacher at West Junior in 1956, Mrs. Scott was employed as a social worker in Boston, Baltimore, Chicago and Cincinnati. Since 1958 she hs been a social worker at West Junior and several elementary schools. She is a charter member of the National Association of Social Workers, a member of the Academy of Certified Social Workers, and a member of local, state and national education associations and has also been active in the work of the Community Planning and Research Council, the Urban League, and the Girl Scouts.

In 1966, Mrs. Scott traveled around the world under the sponsorship of the Comparative Education Society and Delta Kappa Gamma Society and made a special study of schools in the South Pacific. Mrs. Scott is the widow of Cecil Hall Scott of Colorado Springs.

The principals to be transferred to new posts in August are Sidney Berg, from Buena Vista to Stratton; Robert Bainbridge, from Helen Hunt to Buena Vista; and Warren McDowell, from Bistol to Helen Hunt. A replacement for McDowell at Bristol School will be named later.

BLAZE

SAIGON (AP) — About 150 small, closely-packed housing structures were destroyed by fire today near downtown Saigon.

Authorities said the fire, around the city's major vegetable market place, apparently started from a "household accident" and Viet Cong sabotage was not involved. No casualties were reported.

CC Professor Authors Book Of Non-Fiction

Dr. Frank H. Tucker, associate professor of history at Colorado College, is the author of a book published this month by Frederick Ungar Publishing Company of New York.

The non-fiction work, "The White Conscience," is a study of world dominance by European powers and their idealogical offspring from the fifteenth century to present times.

He states that white man's guilt for his actions is crippling his perceptions of the present.

The Publishers' Weekly said of Dr. Tucker's work, "An absorbing, well-written book that documents the thesis that the "white conscience" carries a heavy and profoundly unacknowledged burden for its mistreatment of non-white countries and races over the centuries."

Tucker says by examining our collective guilt, we may lay bare the distortions that perpetuate the crimes of nations and understand the events of our time.

Tucker has been on the faculty of Colorado College since 1963. He was previously employed as the director of the Navy's Language and Area Studies Program, and head of the Bainbridge, Md., School of Naval Reserve Personnel.

He is the author of "History of Certain Naval Operations During the Korean War" and several articles, reviews, manuals and reports on the U. S. Navy. A graduate of Johns Hopkins University, Tucker holds an M. A. and a Ph. D. from Georgetown University. He is also a graduate of the University of Colorado War Time Oriental Language School.

Poseidon Mishap Is Being Studied

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —Experts are analyzing radio data to learn why a Poseidon missile shot off course during a test flight Tuesday.

Seventeen seconds after the 34-foot submarine weapon darted away from a land launching pad, trouble developed in the first stage and the range safety officer flashed a radio signal that blew it apart.

Flaming pieces fell into the Atlantic Ocean about three miles offshore, and two secondary explosions spewed smoke and sea water several hundred feet into the air. A piece of the shattered rocket fell on a remote area of Cape Kennedy.

The first two test flights of the Poseidon, in August and November, were classified by the Navy as successful.

Poseidon, developed as successor to the Polaris submarine missile, will be capable of carrying up to 10 nuclear bombs in each warhead package.

Sen. William Will Fight Pay Raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John J. Williams says he is determined to force his fellow senators into a public vote for or against the $12,000 pay raise suggested for them. He's against it.

The Delaware Republican said he is confident he can get a roll-call vote within three weeks on former President Lyndon B. Johnson's recommendation that congressmen's pay be boosted from $30,000 to $42,500 a year.

"This is not the time for us to be raising our salaries by 40 per cent," Williams declared.

"If we give these kinds of raises, how can we ask private industry to hold the line and try to stop this inflation?

Under a new law, the congressional pay raise—and others for high federal officials—will go into effect Feb. 14 unless one house of Congress vetoes it. Williams has introduced a resolution of disapproval. Presidential pay already has been raised from $100,000 to $200,000 a year.

A special commission headed by Frederick R. Kappel, former chairman of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., recommended paying congressmen $50,000 but Johnson trimmed it to $42,500 on the suggestion of House and Senate leaders.

He recommended paying Cabinet officers $60,000, a $25,000 increase, and similar boosts for Supreme Court justices.
